Boosting Rider Safety with Indicator Sounds

A modern solution to an age old biker problem

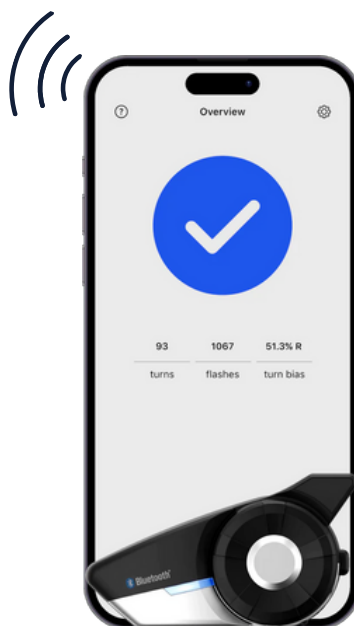

The Problem...

We've all been there: you're riding down a busy street with no intention of making a turn, when you suddenly realise that your indicator has been flashing for many miles without you knowing!

The Solution:

The Indimate Device taps into your bike's indicators and connects to your phone.

Your phone relays a car-like indicator sound to your helmet intercom.

"This really is a brilliantly thought-out solution that can offer a very valuable layer of safety when riding. [... it's] potentially life saving"

John Milbank, Consumer Editor at BikeSocial
