∠ Fond of a fancy house party, Stuart Wheeler was keen that Chilham Castle could happily host his many friends. Hence the quantity of quality seating around the house. George Smith's medium 'Signature' skirted armchair (£3,360 uncovered) is just as deep and cosy as the drawing room's (page 128). Ring 020 7384 1004, or visit georgesmith.com.

് Tessa Wheeler had a house in Tangier, while her decorator lived in the city, so it's little wonder that there's a modicum of Moroccan influence at Chilham. Note the cushions on a sofa in the drawing room (page 128). Why not make your own with Guy Goodfellow Collection's campari 'Fez Weave' (£195 per m)? Ring 020 7352 9002, or visit guygoodfellowcollection.com.

4 The Sainsburys brought the style of the Swinging Sixties into their sitting room, literally, with a bubble chair on a chain (page 146). Get into the groove with a replica, inspired by Eero Aarnio's original, for £495. Ring 08432 892989, or visit bubblechairs direct.co.uk.

Arts and Crafts tiles decorate the shower at Mark and Zivi Sainsbury's house, surrounded by a sea of teal (page 149). For similarly coloured cladding, try Emery & Cie's zelliges in '19' or '48' (£161 approx per sq m). We'll leave the antique-hunting to you, though. Ring 00 32 2 513 5892, or visit emeryetcie.com.

They're made from rags, but there's nothing tatty about the rugs in the Modernist house in Kent (pages 148/153). They came from Larusi's ever-changing stock of Berber runners. Shown: '1926/BOU' (left; £630) and '1461/BOU' (£588). Ring 020 7428 0256, or visit larusi.com.

Hermès is as well known for its chaine d'ancre motif as it is for its silk squares. Benoît-Pierre Emery's modern take on the design crops up on a scarf on his bedroom wall (page 125) and – unsurprisingly, given his role as creative director of the brand's tableware – on its 'Rallye 24' crockery collection (from £125). Ring 020 7408 5300, or visit hermes.com.

O It's not just scarves that Monsieur Emery covets – he feathers his Paris nest with stuffed birds too (page 120). If you fancy a feathered friend but taxidermy makes you squawk, Rockett St George's artificial versions rule the roost. A perching white cockatoo costs £36. Ring 01444 253391, or visit rockettstgeorge.co.uk.

O The Hermès designer says he likes simple interiors, but that doesn't mean spartan, as his sofas attest (page 120). Patricia Urquiola's 'Tufty Time' is just as sumptuous – and modular, so you can have a formation with finesse whatever your floor plan. Prices start at £1,785 for an ottoman. Ring 020 7591 8111, or visit bebitalia.com.

1 O If you're keen to cultivate your cache of silk squares in the manner of Benoît-Pierre Emery (page 116), then consider Richard Allan's collectable designs of the 1960s. Now they've been reissued by his daughter, you can buy one to wear (£156) or as a print (from £750). Visit richardallanlondon.co.uk.

11 Championing pebbledash, pink fur and 1960s pop, Stella McCartney has no qualms with kitsch – note the neon slogan brightening her Old Bond Street shop (page 166). If you still need convincing, these, at £45 per character, will no doubt help you lighten up. Ring The Letteroom on 01264 355488, or visit theletteroom.com.

12 Stella McCartney's new shop cements her reputation as having one of the best eyes in the biz – thanks in part to her choice of concrete walls (page 160). If industrial chic is your thing, but you can't commit to the cast stuff, try Craig & Rose's concrete-effect paint, costing £49.95 per 2.5 litres. Ring 01383 740011, or visit craigandrose.com. ▷
