Stone Formation

Natural stone is the world's oldest flooring and it is not created by man. For millions of years a combination of heat and pressure created blocks of natural stone including granite, marble, travertine, limestone and slate.

Quarry

As the earth's crust began to grow and erode, it pushed the minerals up from its core, forming massive rock deposits, which we refer to as "quarries". The charm of natural stone comes from the unique variations of their veining and color.

Extracting

Huge blocks of rock are cut from quarries using diamond coated saws. Large cuts are needed for efficiency and having large unbroken slab surfaces. Recent advances in the stone industry's equipment and technology have greatly impacted the process of extracting stone from the quarry and installing it in a home.

Transferring/Transportation

Each of the stones cut with diamonds has more than 100 copies of their own prints. They are cut again in 20' / 25' sizes and made portable. The stones that are made into blocks in the stone quarries are transported to the factory where they will be carefully cut.

Cutting

The way the stone is cut dramatically changes the final look of the stone. The rock is formed over a very long period of time, as layers of sediment gather on top of each other and solidify. Cutting along or across these layers results in very different patterns like cross-cut, vein-cut, book-matching.

Finishing

The surface of the stone is finished for different purposes. Most commonly, the surface is finely sanded, providing a smooth polished look. If the surface is sanded slightly less, it gives a smooth matte look, known as honed. More dramatic finish textures can also be achieved, such as tumbled, split faced, hammered or brushed.

Sizing Process

After calibrating and finishing, the stones are cut in the sizing machines according to the desired scales. It is then made ready for a long journey.

Shipping

Appropriately sized and packed in crates, natural stones begin a journey across the continents.

Showroom

Millions of years later, natural stones extracted from various quarries of the world are waiting to be admired in showrooms to meet new owners.

Life of Natural Stone

About Us

MM Tile & Stone is a natural stone company with a focus on Italian collections. With the support of Italian designers, we offer huge selection of different mosaic designs with premium quality.

Our main goal is to be easily accessible for our valuable partners in each state in the U.S.

Integrity is the key value for our company and we always look forward to establish long-term relationships within the industry.

Our company's history and values have been built for many years thru generations of businesspeople. Our founder, Musa Birdal, has carried these values into MM Tile & Stone and this is how today we continue to grow within the natural stone industry.

Lets look into this rich history by his own words: "Born into a large family of four brothers and three sisters, the Mother Earth provided sustenance, nurturance and guidance for our family and the earth has always been the bedrock of our family business. Initially, the family business started with food manufacturing industry. Over time, as our company grew, we diversified into mining natural stones and textiles. Mining natural stones quickly became the focus of the family business and we acquired marble quarries and started working with the best Italian quarries shortly thereafter. These prestigious stones has been sold from these quarries to customers in East Asia, Western Europe and North America. My family has been trading in the international business world for an astounding 120 years as four generations! It is an honor to continue my family legacy of value and integrity with MM Tile & Stone. Our customers and vendors can attest to this high standard.

I look forward to meeting you and sharing my family's legacy for this great earth that provides much beauty!"
