Good ideas for great giftware

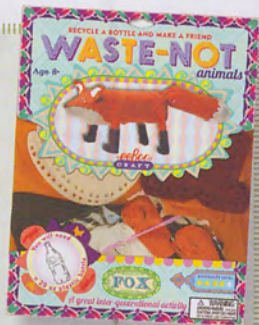

What's new in the world of gifts and greeting cards? We take a look at the freshest innovations and the brightest ideas.

New uses for bottles

Bobangles has released Waste Not Animal Recycle Kits from eeBoo. Wholesaling at $9.95, the products teach children about recycling using a craft kit of pre-cut felt pieces, a cotton sock, a plastic needle and embroidery thread to turn an empty plastic bottle into your new best friend.

Wheelie cool recycling

Wheeliedesigns.com has introduced new designs to its rubbish and recycling collection. Jumping on the 'Keep calm' bandwagon, it has produced some funky and fashionable stickers for wheelie bins.

Customers can make-over their bins with stickers that make recycling fun.

The stickers are waterproof, UV-resistant for up to three years and Australian made. RRP's start from $29.95.

Scents for an angel

Angel Aromatics' new glass candle collection has been made using a natural soy blend and lead-free cotton wicks to prevent toxic black smoke. Each candle is infused with only the highest quality of fragrances and essential oils. Fragrances include Annan, Antique Rose, Vanilla and Coconut, Beach, Parisian Pear and White Lotus.

Baby's first picture

The Ultrasound Frame is the ideal gift for an expectant parent.

Ultrasound photos are the first glimpse excited parents have of their baby, and thanks to Belly Art, parents can now display and treasure this image in a specially designed frame.

The Ultrasound frame incorporates a white matt board shaped perfectly to fit an ultrasound image and includes the saying 'Made with Love'. RRP is $20.
