

Leevity Paneak

Leevity Paneak was born in Iqaluit and lived in Clyde River and Arctic Bay, where he was a carver and jeweler. He likes to learn new skills. For over 10 years, he has been carving, designing, drawing, working in ivory and stone.

He comes from an artistic family, and has learned from his grandfather Peter Paneak, father Adam Paneak, and brother Goola Paneak. Leevity Paneak creates birds, polar bears, drumdancers, seals and walruses. He likes to make rings and pendants. He is a well-rounded artist who also sews traditional kamiiks and mitts.
