Erin Robertson

Erin Robertson is a Canadian painter and sculptor. Drawing on mythological, environmental and societal themes, she uses a variety of mediums in her studio practice to create works that reference folk traditions, popular culture and art histories.

Robertson`s most recent public exhibition, “Semence / Seed”, at Galerie Montcalm Oct-Dec 2019, included both large-scale oil paintings and sculptures. The play of media and materials combined oil paintings and bronze sculptures with ephemera such as dried sunflowers, mirror and moths in order to present visually shifting perspectives on environmental themes. The result is evocative of being immersed in a distorted realm of nature.

Living and working in the National Capital Region, Robertson is a full-time professional artist and art instructor in both Ottawa and Gatineau. Graduate of the Ontario College of Art and the University of Guelph, Robertson exhibits in private and public galleries nationwide.
