This warranty does not cover costs of installation, removal, subsequent damage, or transportation of the defective product, regardless of whether the work was performed by a contractor, service company, or yourself.

Variations in color and grain are natural characteristics in wood. Color changes may occur in finished wood products as a result of exposure to light and other elements that take part in its aging process. Along color variation, solid wood products will expand and/or contract with changes in temperature and humidity, such conditions are not indicative of faulty materials or craftsmanship. In winter, when temperatures fall or when humidity levels are low, contraction may cause a narrow unfinished line to appear on wooden cabinets (also known as shrinkage). One can conceal them by wiping some stain on the line using a small paint brush or a stain pen (available at home centers and paint stores or from your cabinet supplier). Kit Cabinets as well as our manufacturer(s) DOES NOT consider the appearance of an unfinished line as a defect and will not replace doors due to this situation. These material variations and changes are not covered by this warranty.
