

ARTISANSHIP

A true artist believes in creating works that have a lasting impression on those who encounter them. As Van Gogh breathed life into his paintings through the quality of his paints and his commitment to creating something enduring, so does the cobbler who designs shoes by hand, stitching everything with precision, attention to detail and dedication.

The GDAT footwear is a brand founded on true craftsmanship and perfection in each hand-stitched stitch. The artisans at The GDAT believe in forming everything with love and commitment, while making the perfect pair of shoes is a crux of our fundamental values. Our handmade shoes are bluntly for those that believe in individuality and have the liking for the finest of things in life.

To be precise, our craftsman and your liking for individuality is what makes the GDAT, the greatest of all. We offer a range of variations and styles that suit you best for your taste and plenty of occasions. We've got you covered with everything you need, whether you're looking for a classy pair of dress shoes, or something casual to relax in your daily routine.

WHY THE GOAT FOOTWEAR?

In a world dominated by machines and automated production units that produce large quantities in bulk. The GOAT believes in the exclusivity and aesthetics that can only be created by a human hand, which is extremely uncommon in the modern world.

Our target market is people who prefer something special and distinctive that cannot be found in every store. The unique characteristic of handmade shoes is that the craftsman does not waste time on low-quality materials. It must always be the highest quality material available, or nothing.

Handmade shoes 100% original leather with one year warranty

KEY FEATURES

If you are looking for hand-crafted shoes, be sure that you are going to get a lot of additional perks such as peace of mind, great quality, customization as well as attention to detail. The skilled artisans ensure that you get your exact tailored fit when it comes to hand-crafted shoes. It's the best of both worlds, isn't it?

Handmade shoes' craftsmanship and attention to detail distinguish them from mass-produced footwear.

Attention to detail and the signature touch are two vital characteristics the true artisans infuse into the shoe that makes us stand out from the crowd.

Our materials outperform synthetic materials in terms of permeability and moisture management, in addition to their durability and comfort.

Synthetic materials also tend to be less comfortable.

As we know that all customers have different individual choices, we ensure that each crafted shoe meets or exceeds the customers expectations and offer the exactly tailored thing they were looking for.

It is a fact that when you take care of things, they last. In the same line, we use Polyurethane and premium leather while making handcrafted shoes making them last longer than most of the others available in the market.

When it comes to handmade footwear, we normally design it to offer the customers a very high and elevated level of durability, comfort and solace to ensure that our customers get a better fit along with natural mobility as well as unmatched comfort and reduced fatigue in the feet.

Handcrafted shoes are mostly produced using eco-friendly and sustainable materials since the make these turn out to be durable, long lasting and even more comfortable as compared to the mass-produced ones. These help to majorly reduce environmental impact and ensure that these are crafted in a sustainable way.

POLISH/FINISH

GOAT possesses a wide variety of footwear finishes to choose from, including a couple of the most popular ones, which range from:

By smearing a polishing mixture onto the leather or suede, you can create a beautifully shiny and flawless surface. The buffing facilitator may come in the form of any type of cream, waxy substance, as well as oil, which can be utilized via the hands or using a tool.

POLISHED FINISH

By smoothing or scrubbing the surface of the leather, you can attain a beautiful matte appearance. It will help you remove the inherent shimmer visible throughout the leather. The result gives the footwear a natural and rustic appearance.

MATTE FINISH

Successfully achieving Suede finish is possible in two ways. The first way is to try and polish the outermost layer of the leather. While the second process entailed scrubbing the leather using a brush crafted with wire in order to produce an unvarying appearance.

The patent finish has become a great way to add a glossy and polished look to any surface. Patent leather remains an uncommon kind of leather that displays a beautiful and shiny appearance due to its shiny and impervious-to-water finish. This method enhances the leather's visual appeal to a patent-like finish.

PATENT FINISH

Love the leather's charming rustic look? The leather, in most cases, is intentionally granted a distraught finish that makes it look like it has been used or matured, and this adds character and charm. You can easily try to create a distinctive and damaged look on the leather by scrubbing, smoldering, or corroding it.

DISTRESSED FINISH

A burnished finish adds a beautiful shine to any surface! The burnished finish remains a great way to give the leather a smooth along with a more intense visual appeal. You have two options for accomplishing this look - either through your hands or by employing specialized techniques.

BURNISHED FINISH

An oil-coated finish will give your project a beautiful and natural look. The material undergoes treatment using oil to produce a beautiful coated finish, that highlights the appearance of the leather and renders it more malleable and versatile.

BROGUE

Broque shoes, which are also known as wingtip shoes, have been a traditional design of male formal footwear that can be distinguished by the ornamental perforations that run down the outer edges around the toe caps. Brogue shoes have been commonly known as wingtip footwear. The shoes were frequently donned by peasants in damp weather in Scotland and Ireland, therefore the holes were initially meant to enable water to flow out of the shoes.

It is common practice to apply a distinctive coating to a piece of leather with the goal of improving both its ability to stand up to water damage and its overall sturdiness. This treatment helps to ensure that the brogue shoes are going to have a good life expectancy as long as they are properly cared for and maintained.
