

Creepy Creatures

by Sneed Collard

Illustrated by Kristin Kest

Author Sneed Collard shows readers that animals do not try to frighten us on purpose. Animals are, like people, just trying to survive. Point out to children that almost everyone is afraid of something. Help children make a list on the board of things of which they, or people they know, were once afraid, but no longer fear. Have each child draw or paint a page for a class book of foolish or needless fears. For each subject, the child could write an explanation of why people do not need to fear it.
