fine handmade carpets since 1881

INDIA . DUBAI . SINGAPORE

In circa 100,000 B.C. Africa, an early human makes a marking on a rock with ground red ochre, which goes on to become the first human artistic representation in documented history. Tens of thousands of years later, a Neanderthal makes a red hand stencil in a cave in Spain, which is the oldest known cave painting today. And now in the 21st century, somewhere in the virtual world, an artist is pushing the boundaries of visual storytelling by employing generative AI.

While tools, technology, and our very intellect may have evolved over millennia, what has remained ever so constant since the dawn of humankind is the singular, primal instinct to express oneself through art.

All art is expression
