AN INDOOR GATHERING

A SEASONAL SHIFT /

There's nothing like those first spring days to motivate a makeover – the air smells fresh and the sun streams through the windows – it's nothing short of invigorating and a welcome change from the relentless chill of winter. So pull back the curtains and get inspired to make a seasonal shift. Looking for motivation? Who better to turn to than the oh-so-charming, talented and inspiring stylist, Megan Morton. While her work graces the pages of the world's most famous glossy magazines, it's what's at the heart of Megan and her decorating philosophy that interests us. Her effortless enthusiasm and thrill of the find has carved out a unique style which seems to come naturally. Megan shares with us her insight into refreshing a space.

"Making a house a home has little to do with budget, it relies heavily on the old fashioned currency of time. When you approach a spot in the home that needs a bit of love and attention, my simple rationale of hosting investment with inexpensive works every time. This is where time comes into it. Buying everything from the one store or source is easy. Too easy! By combing these two price points and giving yourself time to find and discover items, I believe you are able to achieve something that isn't cookie-cutter or contrived. Nothing like the honesty of garden-snipped camellias in upcycled brown pottery to make an investment table sing. In the same way a wall just seems to explode with joy when artwork you have scrimped and saved for sits equally with handstitched embroideries, family photographs and etsy-found options. Merging low with high works so well not just because of its guaranteed refreshing good looks, but because of the new-found pride you can sense when you put your own preferences and stamp on things."

This season take the high/low approach to breathe new life into a living space and be entertaining ready.
