Silver – Harbinger of Auspiciousness & Tranquillity

Silver holds significant cultural and symbolic significance in various societies around the world. In India, this precious metal is highly esteemed and utilized for auspicious occasions, such as the creation of idols of gods and goddesses. Additionally, it is frequently exchanged as a gift in various forms during festivals like Deepawali, housewarming ceremonies, pooja rituals, and other significant events like the birth of a child.

In India belief in the divine nature of silver is deeply ingrained in the people's mind, and is associated with good luck, protection against negative forces, while playing a prominent role in Vastu practices. To invite positive energy, ward off evil spirits, and attract prosperity, people often adorn themselves with silver jewellery and strategically place silver artefacts in their homes.

Moreover, silver is renowned for its association with the moon and its attributes. Considered a cool metal, it embodies qualities it's celestial qualities such as tranquillity, purity, and beauty. Hence, the Hindi term "Chandi," derived from the word "Chand" meaning moon, is used to refer to silver.

Silver also possesses healing properties. In Ayurveda, it is believed to possess medicinal benefits and is sometimes utilized in the form of colloidal silver preparations to promote overall well-being and purported health advantages.
