MOTHER OF PEARL FINISHES

THE RUMBLED FINISH

Rumbling metal parts is a staple in machine shops. The process involves a vibrating vat in which components are rumbled with stone of varying classification, that de-burrs and smooths out imperfections after manufacturing.

In the case of architectural brass hardware, it renders a finish that has appeal for specific design briefs. The result fresh from rumbling, is the product appears slightly patinated, with a 'texture' almost like a grain. Our ageing produces a seriously excellent result. This finish is available for all the products in our 'Signature Series' on a 4/5 week turnaround.

SAND BLASTING

We achieve a very distressed look with sandblasting. We can specify the level of distressing. Again, we age/ patinate to specification.

BRUSHED/LINISHED

We machine brush with linishing 'mops' and finish by hand to achieve a consistent finish. The stock we hold is highly polished so we have the option of ageing straight from our shelves or refinishing against clients instructions. A popular finish is 'brushed' not aged so a natural ageing takes place.

We have certain ranges, from our 'signature series' coded AB. This popular finish is aged and lacquered with a very durable lacquer. We keep stock of most of the product in this finish, including, hinges, lever sets, privacy turns, door stops etc.

Any product we've sold out of, can be supplemented inside of 4/5 weeks. This goes for all our Signature Series!

FERSA

Fersa is a Argentinian family-owned company celebrated for its exceptional craftsmanship, carried on by the descendants of Spanish and Italian artisans. Fersa provides a broad selection of meticulously crafted products, including decorative hardware, bathroom fittings, accessories, lighting, and railings.

Fersa is known for its faithful recreations of classical designs, but they are also always constantly creating new pieces. Their commitment to ancient casting techniques (lost wax and sand cast foundry, metal chiselling and mercury gold plating) and their exceptional attention to detail has resulted in outstanding products, impressed us tremendously and convinced us to work with them.
