

Product Development and Production Internship

Han Kjøbenhavn is currently seeking a Product Development and Production intern with an interest in fashion, aesthetics, and culture to join our dynamic team. Based in Copenhagen, you will have the opportunity to work closely with our dedicated Design and Production team within an international fashion house. As an intern, you will actively contribute to both Ready-to-Wear (RTW) and Runway collections. If you are enthusiastic about gaining hands-on experience in the fashion industry, we invite you to be part of our creative and collaborative environment.

Your profile:

- Have knowledge about fabrics and garment construction
- Can work with creative software such as Photoshop, Illustrator, Indesign
- Can work with Microsoft Excel and Outlook
- Work independently, flexible and are having a positive attitude
- Study fashion or fashion & management related studies
- Fluency in English is a requirement

Internship Description:

- Help with fabric sourcing and maintain contact with international fabric suppliers
- Assist in measuring and quality controlling at all sample stages
- Support the team with outbound packages
- Attend fitting sessions and support with design and construction comments
- Assist with updating the PLM system
- Sample organisation management
- Helping with keeping the fabric and trim research up to date

Throughout this period, you will gain valuable insights into the processes essential for the fashion industry to ensure the timely delivery of collections. This experience will afford you the opportunity to actively participate in various tasks and acquire hands-on experience from a well-established brand. If you have any questions or require further details, please feel free to reach out. The internship duration is a minimum of 4 months, and please note that it is an unpaid opportunity.
