The Last Queen

JODI Evening

Imagine the ruler of a beautiful, impossible world governed by women. What would she look like, what would she wear, how would she lead?

Her arms embrace not men, but weapons that protect her tribe.

In her eyes you see not sweetness, but enough wisdom and far-sightedness to make others follow her lead.

Her songs are not about lovers. They are sonnets that remind you of her power.

Her clothes are not markers of marriage and home but regal raiments – made of rich silk, dyed in shades of deep ruby and amethyst.

Introducing a new collection of Jodi Silk. This edit of dresses, kurtas, and tailored separates is fit for the queen in all of us. Featuring our original hand block prints – a mix of maximal florals and statement stripes – and hand embroideries, it's perfect for special occasions. You'll find playful details like ruching, corsetry, and ruffles. Intricate hand embroideries like pita, zardozi and needlework. All of which serve to bring serious main character energy to your evening wear wardrobe.
