

Conductor, Haitink continued to collaborate with the Boston Symphony Orchestra as a guest conductor even after 2004. He conducted numerous concerts with the orchestra, including performances at the renowned Tanglewood Music Festival, the summer home of the BSO.

Bernard Haitink's association with the Boston Symphony Orchestra significantly contributed to the artistic legacy of both the conductor and the orchestra. His profound interpretations and musical insights continue to be celebrated by classical music enthusiasts around the world.

Mahler Symphony No. 1

Bernard Haitink

Boston Symphony Orchestra

Live performance recorded April 10th 1973

Bernard Haitink had a significant association with the Boston Symphony Orchestra (BSO). He first conducted the BSO in 1971, and his collaboration with the orchestra continued for several decades, establishing a strong artistic partnership.

Haitink served as the Principal Guest Conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra from 1995 to 2004. During this time, he conducted numerous performances and made several acclaimed recordings with the orchestra. His tenure with the BSO was marked by his insightful interpretations and his ability to bring out the best from the musicians.

Haitink's performances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra were highly regarded by critics and audiences alike. He was particularly known for his interpretations of the symphonies of Gustav Mahler, Ludwig van Beethoven, and Anton Bruckner. His conducting style, characterized by clarity, depth, and a keen attention to detail, resonated well with the orchestra's musicians and brought out exceptional performances.

Beyond his official role as Principal Guest

Mahler Symphony No. 1

Bernard Haitink

Boston Symphony Orchestra

Live performance recorded April 10th 1973

- 1 Langsam. Schleppend 15:45
- 2 Kräftig Bewegt 8:05
- 3 Feierlich Und Gemessen, Ohne Zu Schleppen 11:22
- 4 Stürmisch Bewegt 20:00

Recorded at Boston Symphony Hall

For more info e-mail us:
info@highdeftapetransfers.ca
or visit our website:
www.highdeftapetransfers.ca