MALAWI CHAIR

An African decorating staple full of tradition, these beautiful chairs are made entirely by hand in rural Malawi and display great weaving craftsmanship passed from generation to generation. Each chair requires three to four days to create, and every chair is slightly different in shape and size.

Malawi chairs are handmade using rattan strips, which are woven into intricate patterns along the sides of the chairs and the seat. Rather than using glue, makers secure the strips with special knots. To create a curved barrel back, they temporarily insert spare parts from cars and bicycles that guide them as they work.

CARE

- Keep out of direct sunlight to prevent from becoming brittle.
- Keep away from damp areas to prevent mold - indoor use only recommended
- Clean with a damp cloth with mild detergent to remove dirt
- Apply furniture polish twice per year to keep cane resilient
- Never kneel or stand on the chair as this may damage the woven structure

As a majority of our products are made from natural materials, slight irregularities in shape, color and finish may occur. All our hand-made products are unique. On these particular products, the hand-made element of our production ensure no two products are identical. We believe the use of natural materials and hand-crafted elements result in a testament to the unique qualities found in materials originating from nature.
