La Passione SML, a new seamless era A series of accessories and base layers made with seamless circular technology.

La Passione presents its new SML line, which features innovative and highly technological products, made with circular machines that allow for the creation of minimalist and effective products, eliminating the need for seams.

What is circular seamless technology?

Circular machines offer many possibilities when it comes to clothing production. The garment is seamless and this allows for a clean design combined with comfort and lightness, with very little space. Thanks to the use of specific yarns and natural fibers, with this technology it is possible to create products that are almost perfect for every weather condition, keeping the body dry and providing a perfect microclimate when combined with sweaters and jackets.

The benefits of this technology

The use of these machines, enables us to have totally seamless products and therefore increase the feeling of comfort when in direct contact with the skin. The sleeves are sewn directly on the circumference of the arm, improving freedom of movement. In addition, this particular construction creates uniform and ultra-soft tubular meshes, ensuring perfect thermoregulation.

The Products

The new SML line is made up of four warmers - arm, leg, knee, neck - specifically designed for mid-seasons, a bra, an undershirt and an ultra-breathable short-sleeved jersey.

As for the warmers, these are absolutely essential accessories for both spring/autumn outings and summer adventures at high altitude. Lightweight and incredibly soft against the skin, they are ideal for carrying around, as they take up very little space and fit comfortably in the back pocket of your jersey.

The two base layers differ mainly in the structure of the mesh fabric in which they are made from, guaranteeing the same lightweight and ultra-breathable features that allow the body to stay dry and thermoregulated during summer outings. Their structure, with extreme elasticity, adapts to any type of body type, ensuring an excellent fit and provides a second skin effect.

Finally, thanks to its brilliant seamless design, the Bra guarantees adequate support and the ultra-light fabric ensures effective management of body temperature, giving a push-pull effect of sweat during training.
