Design Considerations/FAQ for Belt Finishing

Sizing: The most accurate measurement for sizing a needlepoint belt is from the point where the buckle meets the leather to the most worn hole.

Belt Width: Belts can be finished 1 ¼" wide or 1 ½" wide. Most needlepoint belt canvases are one or the other. These are the standard widths for buckle hardware, as well.

Extra "Waste" Rows: If you are not doing a binding stitch on the border of the needlepoint, the leather-worker will turn two rows on each side of the needlepoint under for a 'finished' edge look. We strongly recommend stitching a total of four extra/waste rows to prevent loss of design – two on the top, and two on the bottom.

Total Length: If your needlepoint is too long for your desired belt size, the belt finisher may have to cut into your needlepoint. To prevent cutting into the needlepoint, we recommend the total length of your needlepoint to be about 6-7" shorter than your measured belt size. Example: If your belt size is 38" (to fit 36" waist pants), the needlepoint should be 31"-32" in length.

Visible Design: It is best to not include any crucial design elements, motifs, logos, names, initials, dates, etc. on the very ends of the stitched work as they may be covered when the needlepoint is joined with the leather. Personal details should be stitched about 2" in from either end of your needlepoint.

Key Fobs: We recommend your needlepoint to be 8" or more in length for key fobs. Like belts, about 1-2" may be covered by leather join. Please provide 1-2 rows on either side of fob to turn under in finishing process.
