

RED MISO RAMEN

WITH HOME-MADE CHAR-SHU

Japanese Chef and Restaurateur Kenta Ikehata announces that his first ramen restaurant in the Midwest will open in Des Plaines. Chef Ikehata was trained at Tsujita in Tokyo, a beloved artisan ramen brand, which was selected one of the best 10 ramen shops in Tokyo by the readers of Japan Times in 2019. After more than 7 years of experience at Tsujita in Tokyo, Chef Ikehata was sent to Los Angeles to open and manage its first US location, which was described in 2017 as "the king of tonkotsu ramen in Los Angeles" by the late food critic Jonathan Gold of the Los Angeles Times.

Chef Ikehata is proud that Tsujita set the standard for ramen in Los Angeles, winning acclaim from critics and writers alike, and, most importantly, satisfying a multitude of diners. And now that Tsujita has become a noodle juggernaut, Chef Ikehata wanted to share the taste of this authentic, Tokyo-style ramen with the Chicago metro area.

WHITE MISO RAMEN

TSUKEMEN

(DIPPING NOODLE)

This thick soup is cooked for 40 hours and is combined with flat noodles. Squeeze some lime juice on the noodles while eating, and then add some Oni-Kasu to the noodles. This will change the taste and provide additional flavor and texture to the meal. After finishing the noodles, add hot water and enjoy the soup.

*See illustration if you want to warm the noodles, contact the staff when ordering.
