Architecture with Containers, a form of sustainable architecture creating a very peculiar aesthetic from recycled material.

It is a construction procedure based on the assembly of modular elements, in this case, containers used in maritime and rail transport of goods. They are robust, durable, economical, easily transportable, adaptable and sustainable. Their versatility makes them adaptable to the most diverse scales and needs: single-family and collective housing, shopping centers, offices, schools, hotels, restaurants, shelters, laboratories and works of ephemeral architecture.

Slow living also translates into spaces that slow down the frenetic pace of modern life, whether in a seaside village or in the middle of a big city. They seek wellbeing in everyday life; they favor observation, enjoyment, reflection and calm. The interiors of this alternative to the urgent are oriented towards simplicity, conscious consumption and the natural rhythm of things.

The book Slow Living Interiors presents a selection of the work of architects and interior designers from around the world who seek through their work to create environments for an unhurried life.
