

FAUX SEPTUM RING SIZE GUIDE

HOW TO DETERMINE YOUR FAUX SEPTUM RING SIZE

The best faux septum ring size depends on one side on personal taste and on the other side, the faux septum ring should not fall down when moving or being bent too much, since it can break in the middle.

Some people prefer to wear the faux septum ring further away from the nose and some people like to wear it tighter, thus it feels more secure and attached. Please be aware that it can not hang too much down since it then will be lost easily and it should not be too tight so the inside of the nose gets hurt or the faux septum ring will break in the middle when attaching it.

FAUX SEPTUM RING MEASURING TIPS

Measure the length of the part between your nostrils. This works best with a vernier caliper or also a ruler. A measuring tape is a bit difficult to use and give an exact measurement.

The faux septum ring sits inside the nose so the the open end of it has to e slightly narrower than your measurements. It should not sit too tight, thus the inside of the nose gets pressed too much, but it should as well not be too wide in order to not fall down.

The faux septum ring is made of 18k gold. It is a soft metal and thus can slightly bend. Please do not overbend it when applying the faux septum ring since it can easily break in the middle. The opening width is important to get the fit right - it should not be too tight and sit comfortable.

Please, find our general faux septum ring sizes attached underneath.*
