health & safety

Ouchies, boo-boos, bumps, and bruises. They're all a part of growing up, but there are plenty of products on the store shelves and the Web that can help you protect your most precious little one. Some products help keep Baby safe in his or her own room, and others are made for families on the go. (No more close encounters of the germy kind at the grocery store: You can line the shopping cart's child seat with a protective barrier in case Junior decides to chomp on the handle.) Take a spin through our sources for safety and health helpers ... and be sure to check out the safety sites.
