

KID-TESTED, PARENT-APPROVED

March Into Spring

BY NANCY A. MOORE

Both Spring Break and Easter fall during March this year. As a result, we thought it appropriate to offer products that are easy to take along while traveling or marching around T-Town.

Great for passing travel time, The How Come? book will engage your child with fascinating questions and answers to over 100 facts about everyday life. And, just in time for Easter, kids will enjoy the themed bunny books.

All products were given to age-appropriate children to review along with their parents to determine how much they "loved" them. The rating is determined by: feedback from kids and parents, price, durability and age appropriateness.

★★★★★ – A Must Have! We Loved It!

★★★★ – Great Product. We Enjoyed It.

★★★ – Good. Something to Consider.

★★ – OK. Could have been better.

★ – Overall, Not very impressed.

finished it in one weekend." During

Medibuddy First Aid Kit

Price: $4.99

Ages: birth and up

www.Me4kidz.com

While out and about, if your child takes a spill, he or she will be able to spring back up again with the help of the handy and compact Medibuddy first aid kit. "I found it handy just recently during a trip to the park. My daughter fell and got a small scrape, and I was able to utilize the Medibuddy to get her all fixed up – she especially enjoyed getting a smiley face sticker for being so good," remarked our parent reviewer with a 2-year-old daughter.

The package contains basic first aid products for a boo-boo, sting or burn – all in one handy case. The small plastic case will fit easily into a purse, diaper bag, car, stroller or any place where it might be helpful to keep first aid supplies handy. The kit contains 40 items including: colorful bandages shaped like crayons, knee/ elbow bandage, sting relief pad, gauze pads, sting-free antiseptic wipes, burn relief cream, antibiotic ointments and, to top it off, happy face stickers. Products are latex free, US & EU lead free and the container is made from 100% recycled plastic.

★★★★★