“We’ve never had a complaint, an injury, or a claim – either from tripping, falling, or anything of that nature.

It’s very safe, and we estimate that our passengers have used Step ‘n Wash more than 6 million times.

You have to think about all your customers – navigating in public with a child is hard enough. Putting something like Step ‘n Wash in place makes a world of difference.”

The Alternatives

Parents hoisting a child to the sink is unsafe for the parent and the child, and results in wet floors and countertops

Setting a child on the countertop is dangerous for the child, unsanitary, and results in wet floors and countertops

Doing nothing excludes children and people with certain disabilities from being able to remain sanitary and independently wash their hands

Moveable step stools result in millions of dollars worth of claims and related injuries per year

Step 'n Wash has been approved by risk management departments for some of the world's most trusted brands
