

Questions/Answer Trivia for Horse Fever University (right answers are in bold)

1. Dietary supplements are approved by the Food and Drug Administration. True or False.
2. What is the amino acid that should be in the largest amount in a hoof supplement? Lysine, methionine or threonine.
3. A marine calcite is commonly used in horse feeds and supplements to buffer gastric pH and reduce incidence and severity of gastric ulcers. True or False.
4. High levels of dietary sugar and starch, collectively known as nonstructural carbohydrates or NSC can cause colic and laminitis in the horse. True or False.
5. Horses with metabolic issues like Equine Metabolic Syndrome and Equine Cushing's Disease should be provided a feed with a guaranteed NSC value and hay with an analyzed NSC value that will provide a total dietary NSC of greater than 12%. True or False.
6. Pasture is most safely grazed by horses during spring and fall. True or False.