PRINCIPAL FEATURED DESIGNER: JAN GARNCAREK, KOKORA

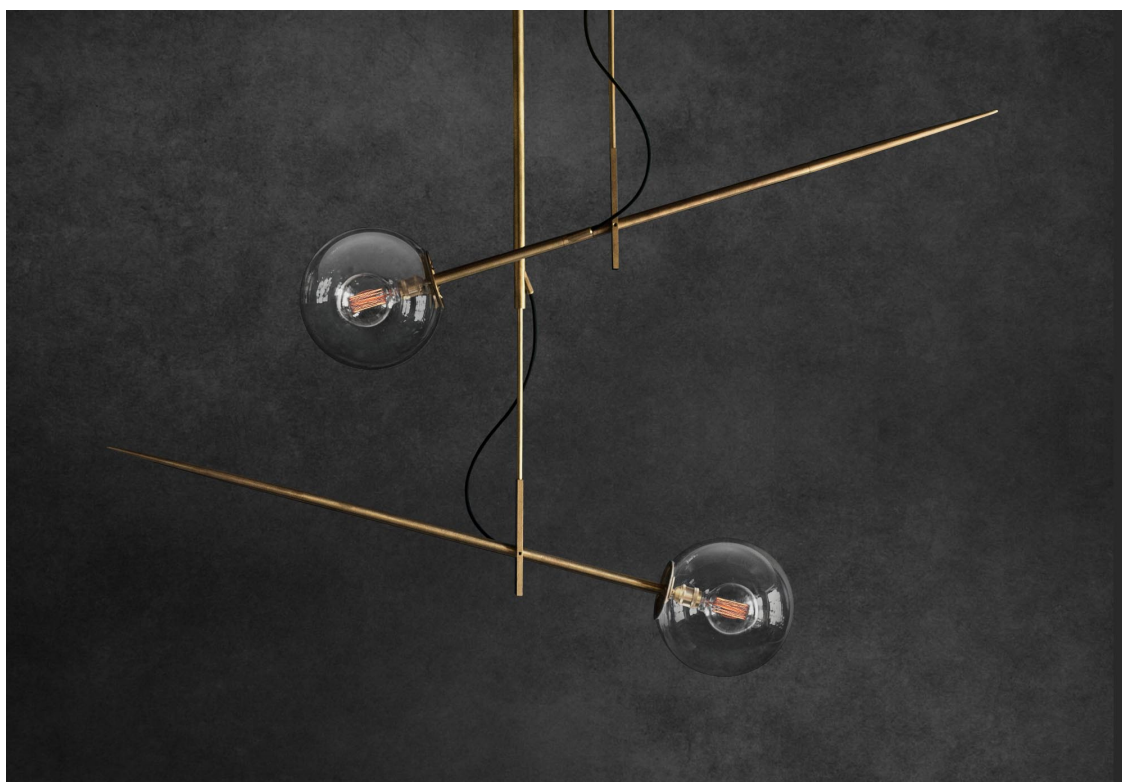

SORS is pleased to announce the coming exhibition of select pieces from the lighting collection designed by Jan Garncarek for the design brand Kokora. The collection consists of three unique pieces: Hasta Hanging Lamp (ceiling), Metropolis Lamp (table) and Metropolis Sconce Lamp (wall), all handcrafted in Europe with materials such as brass, nickel and glass.

The Kokora collection will be presented in the SORS. Showroom during the Paris Design Week events from the 8-16th of September 2017.

INSPIRATION:

Kokora lamps are created under the influence of many inspirations, taken from places that are the cradle of European design, such as Milan, Barcelona, Paris and Berlin. The development of the new lighting collection was inspired by the pre-war Warsaw culture followed by a constant search for inspiration in functional art, literature, sociology, anthropology, and even psychology. This subtle combination of centuries-old traditions with contemporary design trends is indeed a domain of all Kokora designs.

PRODUCTS DESCRIPTIONS:

HASTA hanging lamp is an x-ceiling lamp fully made of brass with the addition of a round glass shade that covers the bulb and emphasizes the asymmetrical design of the piece. The lamp is available in different heights as well as either black or red supplied cable. Dimensions of the lamp - L/H - 120/78 cm.

KOKORA LIGHTING COLLECTION by Jan Garncarek

Metropolis table lamp is hand made of brass, using traditional and innovative methods of metalworking, as, for instance, metal spinning method. It well combines various extremely different forms: the light and soft flat sphere and simple geometrical heavy machine parts. It is 81 cm in height with the 52-cm wide flat sheet.

The Metropolis sconce wall lamp (not pictured here) is the wall version of the Metropolis table lamp. SORS will exhibit an exclusive version of the wall lamp, which features simple yet elegant forms highlighted by the combination of two different finishes. While the plate is made of brass like a previous model, its steel sphere adds an additional dimension to the fixture's design.
