THE MOUNT

'Do you have one like this in dapple grey?'

Some children discover the joys of riding at a very early age . . .

. . . others prefer to wait until they are bigger.

Once in the saddle, however, they are all reluctant to leave it.

Finding a reliable pony is not easy –

professional advice should be sought . . .

Finding a reliable professional can also have its snags.

You must bear in mind
that fat ponies can be hard on the legs . . .

and thin ones hard on the jodhpurs.

Young animals can be unpredictable and old ones just the reverse.

Some instinct will tell you whether you are going to get on well together.

But never buy the first one you see . . .

. . . some day you may want to sell him.

If you buy a pony that is difficult to catch – take plenty of lump sugar with you and eat as much of it as you can . . .

You will need all the energy you can get.

You may learn a great deal about a pony by looking at his teeth

This often applies also . . .

. . . to the rider.
