Marble

At Fenton & Fenton, we are passionate about delivering curated interiors with quality crafted furniture and homewares. We design our pieces to stand the test of time. But, to do so, please treat them with a little tender loving care to keep them at their best.

Just like your personal style, every marble top is completely unique. As a natural stone product, it's the veining in each slab that makes each piece so distinct and personal. Our pieces have a honed finish and light protective coating applied, but as marble is a naturally porous material, it is susceptible to staining, marking and scratching. We recommend ensuring all spills are cleaned up with a damp cloth immediately and not left to seep into the stone. Clean regularly with warm soapy water and avoid harsh chemicals or anything acidic.

CARE & MAINTENANCE

Your marble piece has been sealed prior to leaving us, but marble is a natural and porous stone that requires ongoing maintenance. Marble is fine in heat, but it's a bit softer than some stones, so try these easy tips to keep it pretty.

- For basic tidying, just a clean, damp cloth is the key—then dry with a clean dry cloth right away.
- Use coasters & don't let spills stick around!
 Clean right away to avoid marks and etching.
- Avoid resting vinegar or acidic organics they can permanently damage the marble surface.
- Standard household cleaners are a big no-no—avoid them, as well as abrasives.
- To keep your marble shiny for years to come, we recommend having it sealed every six to eight months. This can be a long and tricky process, so we recommend you have an expert do it. Or if you're a doer, study up.
- Sheet cloth won't cut it—use a coaster for any heated plates or cups.
- Unfinished ceramic-bottoms or objects with ruff finishes can easily scratch your marble surface, so we recommend using felts on decor or placemats for crockery.
- If you need professional assistance, don't be afraid to reach out to a marble restoration pro for further care information.
