MEASUREMENTS MUST MATCH THE INSIDE EDGE OF THE RING

MEASURE YOUR CURRENT RING

- 1. Select a ring that properly fits the intended finger. Engagement and wedding rings are traditionally worn on the fourth finger on the left hand
- 2. Place the ring over a ruler as shown. This measurement refers to the inside diameter of the ring
- 3. Find the US size that corresponds to your measurement from the chart on the left. In this example, 10.5
- 4. If the ring falls between two sizes, order the larger size.

BUYING THE RING AS A SURPRISE

- 1. Ask your significant other's friends or mother for her finger size.
- 2. Borrow one of your significant other's rings (from the correct finger) and use the ring measurements above to determine its size.

JEWELRY GLOSSARY

BRIDAL SET

A bridal set consists of two rings: an engagement ring as well as a matching wedding band for the bride only

BRIDAL BANDS

A bridal band is a wedding band for the bride intended to be paired with an engagement ring

ALLOY

A mixture of two or more metals which strengthens the metal and/or enhances its appearance. Both sterling silver and gold are alloys

925 STERLING SILVER

Jewelry hallmarked 925 is an alloy made up of 92.5% pure silver and 7.5% other metals (usually copper, nickel or zinc). The resulting alloy is called sterling silver and it is stamped 925 to identify it as such

CUBIC ZIRCONIA

A synthetic crystal made of Zirconium dioxide ( $ZrO_2$ ) that is used as a much cheaper alternative to diamonds due to the similar appearance to diamonds. It is however NOT a diamond and should not be confused or misrepresented as such.

TITANIUM

A strong, highly-corrosion resistant lustrous metal. It is about half the weight of steel but 30% stronger. The metal is very hard and thus difficult to bend for jewelry. It is hallmarked as Ti

STAINLESS STEEL

An iron-carbon alloy mixed with chromium and nickel. It is lightweight and corrosion-resistant but not as strong or durable as titanium and is considerably cheaper as well. It is hallmarked as 316L

TITANIUM STEEL

Does not exist for jewelry. Jewelry marked as “titanium steel” is almost always stainless steel jewelry being passed off as the more expensive titanium; either out of ignorance or with the intent to mislead

KARAT

The measurement of pure gold in an alloy. Generally sold for jewelry as 9kt (UK and Europe), 10kt (USA only), 14kt and 18kt. Pure gold is 24kt but can be scratched with a fingernail and is therefore not practical for jewelry. Karat can be indicated as k or kt and is not to be confused with carat which is the weight measurement for diamonds and gemstones

CARING FOR STERLING SILVER JEWELRY

DID YOU KNOW?

Sterling silver turns black or tarnishes due to a chemical reaction caused by contact with sulfur or hydrogen.

Some foods or everyday items containing sulfur can cause tarnishing, but even polluted air can turn sterling silver black.

Tarnish happens to all silver but is worse in some people because the acidity of their skin speeds up the chemical reaction.

Sterling silver does not “fade” or “wash” or “change color”. If there is any discoloration it is most likely due to tarnish and can be easily removed.

To prevent tarnish on your sterling silver jewelry avoid contact with any items that may contain sulfur or hydrogen. A short list is provided below.

Always take off your jewelry before showers, housework, swimming or going to bed. The better you care for your jewelry the longer it will last. Always remember that fine jewelry is very delicate.

COMMON SOURCES OF TARNISH

Latex gloves, wool and elastic items

Eggs, salad dressings, mayonnaise, mustard and onions

Sulfur or hydrogen produced by petrol, diesel or kerosene

Burning coal or wood

Lotions, cosmetics, hair sprays, hair products and perfumes

Living or working near a chemical, electric or manufacturing plant

Swimming pools and salt water

HOW TO REMOVE TARNISH

To remove tarnish from your silver jewelry use a pre-treated polishing cloth or anti-tarnish spray from a jeweler

You can also use a home remedy of warm water and a mild dishwashing soap with a soft toothbrush

If that fails, make a paste of baking soda and water and use a soft toothbrush to gently remove the tarnish. Rinse in clean water and dry with a cloth

PRECIOUS METAL GUIDE

GOLD

Pure 24kt gold is too soft for daily use so it is alloyed with other metals to make it harder.

The karat refers to the percentage of gold in the alloy. The higher the karat the more expensive it is.

Both 9kt and 18kt gold would last a lifetime and they do not “wash” or tarnish.

The lower the percentage of gold in the alloy, the more hard-wearing the ring will be, meaning 9kt gold is more hard-wearing than 18kt gold.

WHITE GOLD

White gold does not exist in nature as all gold is actually yellow. White gold is an alloy of yellow gold and other metals, usually nickel or palladium to create a bleaching effect.

Palladium is much more expensive than nickel and is a better material than nickel which a lot of people are allergic to. Our white gold is alloyed with palladium to meet European standards.

White gold is naturally a grey color and is normally rhodium-plated to create its dazzling white finish.

White gold can start to look yellow with age and use but this can be fixed with rhodium plating, usually once or twice a year.

If you are unable to keep up with the maintenance schedule and/or cost of rhodium plating PLEASE BUY YELLOW OR ROSE GOLD INSTEAD.

STERLING SILVER

Like gold, sterling silver is a precious metal. Pure silver is too soft for jewelry so it is alloyed with other metals to make it harder.

Genuine sterling silver is hallmarked 925 to indicate that it is 92.5% pure.

Silver is prone to oxidation which can turn the metal black but this is easily cleaned with a silver cleaner.

PRECIOUS METAL GUIDE

Like white gold, sterling silver is naturally grey in color and is rhodium plated to give it a dazzling white finish.

Please note that this thin rhodium coating will eventually wear off and the ring will revert to its natural grey-silver color.

Sterling silver is more affordable than gold and is a good option if you can care for it. Read our care tips on page 25

TITANIUM

Titanium is the hardest natural metal in the world yet very lightweight.

It is resistant to tarnish, corrosion, dents or bending and is a good choice for men's bands. It has a lovely dark grey color and is also very affordable.

Titanium can however get scratched like silver or gold.

Titanium cannot be resized or soldered because it is not very malleable. Ensure to get the ring size right at the time of purchase.

RHODIUM PLATING

Rhodium is a precious metal that is 10 times more expensive than gold. It is too brittle for jewelry making but it is used to coat both white gold and sterling silver because of its dazzling white color.

Rhodium plating is a thin coating that will wear off eventually and the underlying metal will revert to its natural grey color.

This does not affect the quality or durability of the ring.

If you prefer your ring to be the dazzling white color instead of its natural grey, please bear in mind that you will have to redo the rhodium plating, usually once or twice a year.

Other people prefer the darker patina of natural white gold and sterling silver and leave their rings without the rhodium plating.

DID YOU KNOW?

1. Gold is actually a very soft metal that can get bent or scratched easily.
2. Repeated exposure to chlorine can cause your gold ring to weaken and break
3. Household cleaners with acids or abrasives will damage your ring
4. Take off your jewelry before showering, going to bed, or engaging in high-contact activities like sports or domestic chores
5. As a general rule, treat your wedding rings the same way you would treat an expensive wristwatch

DIAMONDS VS CUBIC ZIRCONIA

Cubic Zirconia (CZ) is often used as a cheaper substitute for diamonds in jewelry due to the similar appearance.

Diamonds can be up to 20 times expensive than CZ and even more in some cases. Diamonds are also harder and more durable than CZ.

Reputable jewelers always clearly differentiate between the two stones.

However, some sellers will misrepresent the stones as diamonds even though in reality they are CZ.

Some misleading names for cubic zirconia are simulated diamonds, sona diamonds, diamond-coated CZ, synthetic diamond, diamonique, russian ice, imitation diamond etc.

THESE ARE MERELY ALL

EXPENSIVE CZ WITH FANCY NAMES.

Diamonds are made up of 99.999% carbon. If it not a diamond, it should NOT be called a diamond.

If a product is being marketed as a simulated diamond, sona diamond etc, understand that what you are buying is most certainly NOT a diamond.

WHAT IS "TITANIUM STEEL"

The alloy or metal "titanium steel" does not exist. Titanium and stainless steel are two completely DIFFERENT metals.

Jewelry marked as "titanium steel" is actually stainless steel which is usually imported or dropshipped from Chinese sites like AliExpress, and being misrepresented as titanium.

Stainless steel is a significantly cheaper material than titanium, in part because it is 4 times weaker than titanium, whilst being about 30% heavier.

Titanium is also much harder to work with and requires very technical casting requirements and tools.

While stainless steel is not a bad choice for jewelry, sellers who refer to stainless steel as "Titanium Steel" are essentially characterizing a much cheaper and inferior material as a more expensive one in order to charge higher prices.
