The Day of Rain

Part 1

Drops of rain splashed on the sill. Nick was mad as he brushed his dog, Slick. "Rain, rain, rain!" Nick said. "I have to stay in. I have to wait until the rain stops." He brushed Slick's tail and said to the dog, "A day of rain is a day to wait." Slick just sat and waited with Nick.

Part 2

Raindrops crashed on the mailbox as Nick waited.

"Mum, must I wait?" Nick asked. "May I sail my ship in the rain? That ship just sits on the shelf and waits."

"No, Nick," said Mum. "You may not sail the ship in the pond. You will get wet in the rain. Wait a bit and I think the rain will stop. You can play with Slick until lunch. After lunch, Kim and Chuck may drop in and you can play with them."

Part 3

At midday, Mum and Nick had lunch. Then Mum said, "I see Kim and Chuck. Run and let them in." Nick got up and let them in. They were wet from the rain.

"I am glad to see you," said Nick. "Can you stay? We can play with my ship. We cannot go to the pond in the rain. We can sail the ship in the bathtub."

A Deal with Dad

Part 1

“Lim, may I speak with you?” said Dad. “I need a little help. A man I work with, Ed Hill, is on his way to see me. His son, Nat, is with him. Will you play with Nat? That way, Ed and I can work in the shop. Is it a deal?”

“Nat Hill boasts all day, Dad,” Lim groaned. “But, yes, it is a deal.”

Part 2

“We can play in my room,” Lim said to Nat. “My trains are in there.”

In his room, Nat said, “That is a little train set. I own a very big set of trains.” Nat sat down and said, “Look! The clock on the desk is slow. It is after ten. I own a big brass clock from a ship. My dad had it flown from the seacoast.”

Part 3

Nat and his dad left after lunch. “Dad,” said Lim, “I think you got the best of that deal. Nat boasted all day.”

“Nat will grow up,” said Dad. “He feels he has to brag to show off. He needs pals such as you to teach him not to boast. When he grows up a little, he will be fun to play with. He will not boast. Wait and see.”
