Mother Ocean

Every time I see the ocean beach, I smile in happy surprise. Its always so different and fascinating! The wind tosses the salty air against my face. To my right, the beach looks like a long highway of sand. Off to the left, saltmarshes look like green arms stretching far into the bay. Out where the ocean is calm, the water glitters from the bright sun and reflects the deep blue sky. Far away, white sails bob up and down like tiny moths. Closer to me, seagulls screech and the waves smash the shore with a boom. The lacy white surf splashes towards me and rolls back.

Should I take a swim? I shiver at the very thought. As I approach the water, the hot sand scorches my feet, but that doesn't stop me from plunging into the cold surf. This is the best treat of all!

A Great View

I like to look at this ocean beach. It always looks so different and I'm fascinated by it. The wind blows air in my face. The long sandy beach on the right. On the left are the green saltmarshes. They stretch into the bay. There is bright sunlight on the water. It looks blue like the sky. I can see lots of white sails far out in the water. They look like tiny bugs. I hear the waves and the seagulls. The surf rolls in and out.

Should I take a swim. I run across the sand and jump into the water. It really feels good!
