November In The Trial Garden

Finally! An early bearing, adaptable Tabasco chile. Unlike other cultivars we've tried, these tall, bushy plants bear heavy crops of red-ripe little flavor bombs, even with our cool summer evenings. We'll make hot sauce and share the recipe when we add this to our line of chile varieties.

The autumn cabbage trial didn’t mind fall frosts, so our cabbages are tasty, big and beautiful. I cut them in 2-3” wedges, sprinkle liberally with olive oil, and roast in a preheated 375°F oven until edges are browned crisp, but centers are tender. Season, then top with cheese or a hot sauce spritz.
