ROSEMARY HALLGARTEN

Rivulet Rug

A Rosemary original design, Rivulet was one of the first patterned rugs developed. This Spring was the perfect opportunity to bring back this design in a new and exciting way. A pattern that is reminiscent of a winding stream, Rivulet in Bluff is a creamy white with a high pile pattern that captures the essence of the organic movement in nature.

It works as a regular area rugs and is the perfect design for winding staircases.
