DR. HASMIK KHALAPYAN

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY OF ARMENIA (AUA)

IN A DISCUSSION OF

"WOMEN'S ACTIVISM DURING THE WESTERN ARMENIAN RENAISSANCE, 1860-1914"

SUNDAY, MARCH 4, 2018 AT 2:30 P.M.

at NAASR Headquarters, 395 Concord Ave., Belmont Mass.

Open to the public, free of charge – Reception to follow the program

Dr. Khalapyan teaches courses at AUA in Armenian History, the Psychology of Gender, and the Armenian Women's Movement. After earning her BA from Brusov State Institute and MA from Miami University in English and French Linguistics, she received her PhD in History from Central European University, Budapest. She is also Academic Director of AGBU's Armenian Virtual College and Editorial Director of the Virtual College's Multimedia E-Book Series. Her presentation will discuss how "modernity" among the Ottoman Armenians gave rise to a "philanthropic public sphere" and facilitated women's participation in social reform.
