

Photo Credit: Tsolag K Dildilian, 1922

THE DILDILIANS: A STORY OF PHOTOGRAPHY AND SURVIVAL

Join us for a virtual film screening and panel discussion

OCT
29
2020

THURSDAY | 6:00PM-7:30PM

Learn more and register to receive an event link
at armenia.uconn.edu

UConn
UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT

Norian Armenian Programs
Office of Global Affairs
School of Social Work
Human Rights Institute
Digital Media and Design

Project Save
ARMENIAN PHOTOGRAPH
ARCHIVES, INC.

VIRTUAL FILM SCREENING & PANEL DISCUSSION

THE DILDILIANS: A STORY OF PHOTOGRAPHY AND SURVIVAL

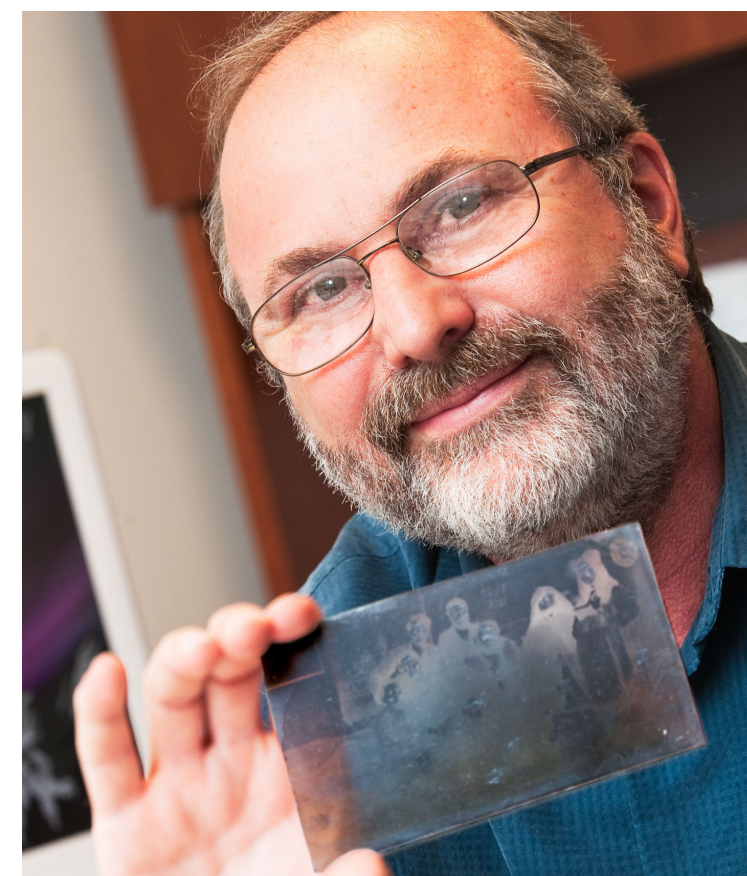

FILM SYNOPSIS

During the 19th and early 20th centuries, a remarkable family of Armenian photographers, the Dildilians, captured a time and a way of life in Anatolia, central Turkey, that was soon to disappear during the Armenian Genocide of 1915. This documentary, which is the product of a unique collaboration between filmmaker Catherine Masud, Dildilian family historian Armen Marsoobian, and a talented group of University of Connecticut students, tells the story of that lost community through the voices of family descendants, supplemented by historical photographs and documents from the family archive.

PANELISTS

Catherine Masud
Award-winning
Filmmaker

Armen Marsoobian
Dildilian Family
Historian

Joined by a select group of UConn Digital Media and Design students that assisted with production

SCHEDULE

Thursday, October 29, 2020

6:00 PM Opening Remarks (YouTube Premiere)

6:05 PM Film Screening (YouTube Premiere)

6:30 PM Panel Discussion (YouTube Live)

Please register at armenia.uconn.edu to receive the links for the events.

To request reasonable accommodations for people with disabilities, please contact global@uconn.edu.