Valentine's garden therapy

DURING LOCKDOWN, our gardens have become more of a sanctuary than ever before. However, beware of what lies beneath.

The combination of black lichen, white fungi and green algae, accentuated by the winter's rain, can turn your patios and pathways into a death trap. It's a hidden danger to adults, children and grandchildren.

When your pathways and patios have become no-go areas, buy Patio Black Spot Remover® from The Patio Black Spot Removal Company Ltd, and instantly be able to access all zones.

Simply spray on to the affected areas, and be amazed as the product does all the work, gently lifting those layers of organic growth, without damaging the surface.

It is delivered in two days – and works in two hours. There is minimum pressure washing with maximum cleaning performance – creating instant results. Plus, it's nothing short of therapeutic!

The Patio Black Spot Removal System lovingly restores, but permanently prevents. Treat your patio to some love for Valentine's Day and prepare to be amazed.

Order yours now from the website at patioblackspotremoval.com or contact the team on 01252 751612.

Get yourself a rug that really ties the room together

THE AFGHAN RUG SHOP are the only company in the world, outside of Afghanistan, that only sells 100% fair trade handmade Afghan rugs. James Witthow, an RAF veteran of five operational tours, established The Afghan Rug Shop in 2015 and imports their rugs direct from weavers in northern Afghanistan, after having served there in 2003.

About 12 years after James had left the military, he managed to track down the Afghan friend he used to buy from. After weeks of searching for him on social media, they rekindled their friendship online and the business was born.

James stocks rugs suitable for a modern flat through to large country houses. "We can supply any size of rug and some of them are huge," says James.

It's not just rugs though. They sell kilim-covered furniture, beautiful handmade glass from Herat and pottery from Istalif town.

Target Tiles – the perfect fit

MANY PEOPLE HAVE PAID more attention to their homes in recent times, opting for a mix of both bold and traditional tile styles.

The 'honeycomb effect' that hexagon tiles offer is on trend, plus there's loads of quirky designs hitting the market.

A good example of this is the Axis Hexagon tile (on the right), available in black and white options. The four symmetrical lines on this porcelain wall and floor tile can be manipulated to create striking patterns in your home.

That's not to say that 'traditional' is out. There are many styles, like the classic Victorian tile that has been reinvented for today's world.

A collection such as Target Tiles' Dorset (below) comes in a 316 x 316mm size, cutting out the process of laying lots of smaller individual tiles. There are four colour options to choose from, all with a geometric pattern that is sure to add bundles of character to your home.

Target Tiles is one of the largest online tile retailers and have been serving customers in the UK for over 18 years. It's safe to say, they know what they're talking about!

To fulfil orders promptly and efficiently, their warehouse holds over 10,000 square metres of tiles – just to put that into perspective, it's roughly the same size as a rugby pitch.
