Do you have a passion for urban agriculture, sustainability, and the local food movement? Do you have experience working on a farm/garden or restaurant kitchen and would like to continue using those skills at an exciting start up right here in Chicago? If so, The Roof Crop may be a great fit for you! TRC is looking for seasonal interns to join our competitive internship program at our roof headquarters in West Town.

THE ROOF CROP GROWS FOOD. ON ROOFS.

TRC leases green roofs and manages the farming, harvesting and sales process for over 25,000 sq feet. Selling to local restaurants, wholesale, retail stores and direct to consumer, TRC is quickly becoming a key contributor to the local food & urban ag movement in Chicago.

The ideal candidate will have experience or interest in the following areas; planting, farm maintenance, harvesting, cleaning, sorting, and packaging produce. Critical thinking and communication skills are an asset. The candidate(s) will be needed to work on various tasks and projects on and around our roof farms. This includes but certainly isn't limited to planting days, general farm maintenance, picking/harvesting, cleaning and packaging produce and local deliveries. Candidates will report to the Growing Manager and Project Coordinator.

Candidates with valid Food Safety Certification and/or construction/growing and OSHA Certification are a plus.

The team at TRC is made up of dedicated and innovating individuals and we are excited to be expanding our internship program this Fall! This internship will provide invaluable experience to those interested in sustainability, urban agriculture, local & slow food movements, and more. If this sounds like a rewarding opportunity please send a short message on why you would be a great fit as well as your resume to hannah@theroofcrop.com. Due to the high amount of applications we receive, only those we feel are a good fit for the program will be contacted!
