Overview
MiddlesexMD.com is a tasteful, comfortable place where midlife women can explore clinically sound sexual health information. It provides a guide to the biological changes that come with menopause and how those changes can alter how women over 40 experience sex. MiddlesexMD also offers advice, actions and techniques to help women compensate for those changes and enjoy sexuality for life.

About MiddlesexMD
Founded by menopause care specialist Dr. Barb DePree, MD, MiddlesexMD is a self-help site that’s easy to navigate based on a woman’s experiences with sex. It is organized around five “recipe” elements for sexual health: knowledge, vaginal comfort, genital sensation, pelvic tone and emotional intimacy. The home page also lists a number of statements Dr. DePree has heard often from patients in her practice. Things like “Sex is painful” or “I’ve lost interest.” Each of the recipe elements and statements links visitors to actions they can take to address their specific issue. Vaginal comfort or painful sex, for example, might lead to using a lubricant or moisturizer.

MiddlesexMD also provides medically accurate but easy to understand explanations of conditions that might affect a woman’s sexuality. Each condition suggests actions that a woman might consider, directing her to see her practitioner when the condition or the action suggests it. Dr. DePree is also available on the site via email to answer questions from visitors. All of the information is free.

Additionally, MiddlesexMD includes a store. From personal vibrators to kegel exercisers to vaginal moisturizers and lubricants, the products are carefully selected for midlife women. Each product features a description of how and why each works, who might consider it, why it was chosen, and any cautions.

MiddlesexMD provides the privacy women need to be sure their explorations and purchases remain a private matter. It encourages and supports sexual health, and refers women to their practitioners for appropriate care.
