JESSICA ANTEBY TELLS US WHAT STYLES TO SKIP, INVEST IN, AND JUMP ON THIS FALL

🕒 Oct 6, 2015 @ 5:00 pm 📌 By Stephanie Janetos

There are some girls who are so awesomely groovy that anything they throw on is featured in a zillion “Get Her Look” blog posts the very next day. NYC stylist Jessica Anteby is one of those people. With a generous dose of confidence and the uncanny ability to predict upcoming trends, Anteby is the perfect person to talk shopping lists with. “I like mixing between high end things and trendy things. The trendy things are always less expensive, so I spend more money on the classics that will last!” It’s time to say ta-ta to the skinny jeans and midi rings: find out exactly which trend pieces are taking up Anteby’s closet space, what to skip, and what to invest in, below.

Trend you hated at first but are now feeling? Mom jeans.

Trend that takes an extra dose of confidence and a special day? Cut-outs.

Favorite recent investment piece? Saint Laurent chelsea boots.

Jacket trend to keep you warm? An extra long wool overcoat. I’m loving the one I just got from Chloe.

The most awesome jewelry trend? I love chokers. I’m very into the thick fabric ones and I love this new Anmaré laurel leaf choker. I throw on a T-shirt and jeans and add a choker, and all of a sudden I look put together.

Trend that’s about to explode? We saw some turtlenecks on the runway last season and they’re going to make a comeback this winter.

The vibe everyone in fashion is working? That laid back “I just threw this on” sneaker look but really took an hour picking out every detail of this outfit!
