Mother and Child

Giving birth is the antithesis of war. Mother's Day, celebrated this year on May 12th, has a rich history that grew out of the grief and carnage of the American Civil War. Mother's Day is a celebration of life and love, and a prayer for peace.

The Peace Bronze Story

Peace Bronze is magic, transforming the most violent weapons ever created into celebrations of peace.

FromWarToPeace.com

From the late 1940s through the early 1980s, immense quantities of copper were mined in Montana, copper that ended up powering nuclear weapons. Throughout the American Midwest, thousands of missiles armed with nuclear warheads were inserted into silos and aimed at our presumed enemies around the world. Miles of cable connected these missiles to U.S. military command, ready 24/7 to press a button and send us to nuclear Armageddon. Since the late 1980s, the U.S. has entered into a number of nuclear disarmament treaties, first with the Soviet Union, then with its successor, Russia. The U.S. and Russia have disarmed thousands of nuclear weapons in the last 30 years, but we still have a long way to go to reach a nuclear weapon-free world.

Why? Because the U.S. still maintains a nuclear arsenal of 2,468 active warheads, with a further 7,000 “inactive” in reserve. Russia has even more warheads poised to shatter the world with unimaginable violence. In addition, China, Great Britain, France, India, Pakistan, Israel, and North Korea each have nuclear arsenals. South Africa remains unique among nations; it developed nuclear weapons but has since disarmed and eliminated its arsenal.

The cabling connecting the disarmed nuclear missile silos was left in the soil of the American Midwest. This cabling, up to 3.5 inches in diameter and made of plastic, copper, and steel, was buried deep underground to keep it impervious to nuclear assault. The cabling is not radioactive and never has been. It is as safe to handle as the coins in your pocket or purse.

From War to Peace has patiently dug much of this missile cabling out of the soil, recycled the metals into their pure forms, and used the copper to create a wonderful alloy we call Peace Bronze™. Our creation is made from 95% copper, 4% silicon, and about 1% manganese — all recycled materials.

Peace Bronze™ is entirely American-made.

Labyrinth

Searching for enlightenment, cultures from the ancient Minoans to Native Americans placed this potent symbol in their holy places. Later Christians installed labyrinths on cathedral floors. As medieval pilgrims traced the maze, they meditated on their path, as seekers still do today. Our labyrinth, taken from the cathedral at Chartres, has a dove of peace at its heart.

The Peace Symbol was created in 1958 by the artist Gerald Holtom for the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament in Great Britain. It is a combination of the semaphores for the letters N and D, standing for “Nuclear Disarmament.” Holtom also said that the symbol reflected the silhouette of a person in despair at the world’s rush to self-destruction through the development of nuclear weapons. It has become the universal symbol of peace, embraced and understood in every culture. The peace symbol jewelry offered by From War to Peace is the first time that the Peace Symbol of nuclear disarmament is actually created from disarmed and recycled nuclear weapons.

The Chinese words Yin & Yang literally mean "shadow & light," and together describe how polar opposites are interconnected and interdependent in the natural world. The concept lies at the origins of classical Chinese science and philosophy. Yin and Yang are complementary forces, the unseen (hidden, feminine) and the seen (manifest, masculine), each distinct, and each necessary to the other.

Tikkun Olam

*The French philosopher Albert Camus said it best: "The only battle worth waging is for peace." Tikkun Olam is a Hebrew phrase meaning "healing and restoring the fractured world." Mohandas Gandhi

From War to Peace is honored to cast the Gandhi Peace Award medallion from Peace Bronze™, the remarkable alloy created from disarmed and recycled nuclear weapon systems.

The Gandhi Peace Award nominees are distinguished by having made significant contributions to the promotion of an enduring international peace founded on justice, self-determination, diversity, compassion, and harmony, achieved through non-violent means—in the spirit of Gandhi.
Among the remarkable people who have received this award are:

Eleanor Roosevelt
Rev. William Sloan Coffin, Jr.
Dr. Benjamin Spock
Dorothy Day
Norman Thomas
Daniel Ellsberg
Marion Wright Edelman
Cesar Chavez
Dr. Helen Caldicott
Dr. Linus Pauling

The 2012 recipient of the Gandhi Peace Award is Amy Goodman, host of Democracy Now!, who has long been a constant and insistent voice for those damaged by war and oppression. By shining the light of media attention on the abuses of power throughout our world, she has given compelling voice to those injured by social injustice, environmental degradation, and the tragedies of war and violence.

Mezuzah

A mezuzah (Hebrew-"doorpost") is a piece of parchment in a decorative case inscribed with specified Hebrew verses from the Torah (Deuteronomy 6:4-9 and 11:13-21). These verses comprise the Jewish prayer "Shema Yisrael," beginning with the phrase: "Hear, O Israel, the LORD our God, the LORD is One."

A mezuzah is affixed to the doorframe in Jewish homes to fulfill the mitzvah (Biblical commandment) to inscribe the words of the Shema "on the doorposts of your house" (Deuteronomy 6:9).

Our Peace Trinity Mezuzah features the word "Peace" in three different languages, Shalom (Hebrew), Salaam (Arabic), and Peace (English) — representing the goal of a world without war and a people no longer divided by faith.

Our Traditional Mezuzah features a textured design and the Dove of Peace.
