Who We Are

Convivium Press, based in Miami, FL, provides a significant contribution to religious studies through English and Spanish translations of classic authors and contemporary voices for academic and non-academic readers in the U.S. and throughout the world.

In the spirit of its name, Convivium Press books enrich conversation, understanding, and appreciation among religions and cultures. They inspire a dialogue at the interface of ethics and social problems, with a solid theological perspective. They encourage reconciliation and cooperative endeavors through printed and online publications and social networking.

Convivium Press publishes new works and superlative and accessible English translations of recognized authors from different countries to enrich dialogue among readers worldwide. Such authors include N. T. Wright, Albert Vanhoye, Luis F. Ladaria, José Antonio Pagola, Bernard Sesboüé, Tomas Spidlik, John Main, Antoine Vergote, Sergio Bastianel, Hosffman Ospino, Roberto Goizueta, and José Ignacio González Faus.

Convivium Press books are the result of key collaborations with the International Society for the Studies of Biblical and Semitic Rhetoric, the Pontifical Gregorian University, the Institute for Hispanic/Latino Theology and Ministry at Barry University, and the World Community for Christian Meditation. As part of their mission, Convivium Press books support the religious formation of Hispanic/Latino communities in the U.S. through the establishment of joint editorial projects.

Our inspiration

 “The purpose of the company will be editing, distributing and commercializing text books, e-books and illustrated books, in order to develop a publishing proposal in different languages, inspired in values within the framework of a Jewish and Christian humanism, specifically in areas such as Theology, Philosophy, Psychology, Cultural and Religious Anthropology, Literature and Politics, in order to promote a better understanding of social and political coexistence valuing the transcendental sense of human relations, the acceptance of men as convivial subjects, the recognition of social and cultural diversity, and the reaffirmation of all social values that promote fraternity. To such effects, the company will be able to establish agreements that could include editing cooperation, co-edition and financing funding resources with recognized Universities and other Institutions, which guarantee the academic quality and the actual necessity of its editorial proposal”¹.

Convivium Press, Inc was founded in November 2007 for the purpose of publishing academic and trade books in the fields of Theology, Philosophy, Bible and Semitic Studies, Christian Spirituality, and Literature¹. Some books are in Spanish and some in English, since the company serves academic and religious communities around the world by providing them with high academic level reading material. Specifically, the target market for our books is composed of the Theology, Philosophy and Religious Studies Departments at Universities, Seminaries and other Centers for religious studies, the academic and public libraries, and religious communities in general, in the USA, Canada, Latin America, Europe, Australia, and, in the near future, some countries in Africa and Asia.

Convivium Press, an editorial endeavor inspired by Judeo-Christian humanistic values, strives to promote diversity of thought and affirms perspectives and proposals that can enrich community togetherness and encourage reconciliation among all peoples. We choose books that reflect and are consistent with the intended meanings of the Latin expressions convivalis and convivium, that is, that human beings and cultures can only attain their full capacity within an episteme framework of human relations, coexistence, togetherness, reconciliation, fraternity, and recognition. This Project intends to build bridges and create bonds between different cultures by providing a space in which there can be an exchange of cultural perspectives and knowledge facilitated by the publication of high-quality books in English and Spanish.

Our Press is committed to building on a tradition that values human coexistence based on the transcendental sense of human relationships; the recognition of real differences that are part of our call to live within communities; and the reinforcement of those social values that promote and embrace fraternity and justice among persons, cultures, and religions; and offering communities and individuals worldwide a constantly growing editorial catalogue in English and Spanish, as well as a website that provides opportunities for encounter, reflection and dialogue in addition to other services and on-line tools.
