

The Virtues of Creation

“Creation is our inherent nature.”

A Celebration of our Human Nature

Imagine how life would look like if your choices were grounded in courage, patience and kindness. And what if all we needed to do, is to remember?

This collection presents you our new partners of co-creation. Enlightening reminders of our human nature. These table lights are the perfect entry into the Sakura Lifestyle.

Designed and crafted with the community of artisans in Marrakesh, they are the fruits of the process of co-creation.

*"To offer our uniqueness to the world,
we nurture what we have in common."*

- Steven Pauwels.

The embodiment of co-creation

For each craft and technique, specialized artisans participate in the process. Their skills were passed on through generations.

A hand saw, a hammer, a chisel, ... hand by hand, all these differences merge into a harmonious co-creation.

Specific traits of the virtues, inspired the use of different alloys and kinds of glass.

Earthy colors suit the virtue of humbleness while transparency perfectly reflects the virtue of acceptance.

The structured glass represents the different conditionings we hold around kindness.

All materials are sourced locally.

Simple tools and amazing craftsmanship combine into luxury interior decorations.

The Virtues of Creation collection is the embodiment of the process itself, reminding us of our human nature.

New Choices

The raised dodecahedron is an artistic expression, representing consciousness.

Conscious choices and acting them out in the world, is the mechanism by which we carve our adventure out of life's potential.

It is how we co-create our experience of life. For the boxes, the artist choose for authenticity, function, natural materials and re-usability.

After delivering your bespoke interior decoration safely at your doorstep, these boxes continue to serve as practical reminders of nature.

Sharing in the Present Moment

Being honest with ourselves is essential to liberate our intuition, the connection to nature and the world around. Purifying this connection is the key to unlock a different way of making choices aligned with life itself.

To free ourselves from the protective barriers of the mind and allow life to be part of our co-creation, we nurture our patience and persistence. They are the bouncers at the door of the ever present now.

The Sacred Trio

The sacred trio, designed as a combination of consciousness, the Buddha and any virtue of choice from the collection. Interior decoration becomes a silent altar of transformation.

Consciousness

Awareness is key to self-mastery, shining light into our unconscious patterns of behavior. If we want to learn how to master our inner world, we'll need to become aware of these patterns first.

The Buddha

The Buddha symbolizes awakening, inner peace, and the potential for liberation within all beings. Besides the many virtues attributed to the Buddha, he represents the virtues of discernment and equanimity. Balance between both virtues is essential for true freedom. Seeing the truth (discernment) and not being shaken by it (equanimity).

The practice of discernment and equanimity allow us to move wisely, not just by good intentions.

The Divine Couple

Our Presence and Worthiness define the divinity of the dream we're able to welcome into our lives. They represent the Queen and the King on the dance floor of life.

Together, they symbolize the union of opposites and are the origin of life. At the same time, they are the fruits of the process of co-creation. With each iteration, we get to nurture and deepen our virtues, If done with attention, each dance becomes more divine.
