A lamp collection that elegantly unites the new and the old

Normann Copenhagen launches its new lamp collection, Cellu, comprising both a table lamp design and an enlarged floor lamp variant. The design is particularly characterized by its eye-catching proportions and classic references. The Cellu Lamp collection is a modern interpretation of the classic folded paper lampshade. The design has been brought into the present-day aesthetic with its PVC shade for enhanced durability, resting on a powder-coated aluminum column and powder-coated steel base, both designed with a distinctive, robust expression.

The shade reveals clear references to the iconic pleated lampshades, an element that has been preserved while infusing the overall design with a contemporary, updated aesthetic that complements modern interiors. The base possesses a remarkably distinctive, enlarged expression, further emphasized by the striking and playful color combinations of the powder coating. Thus, Cellu is an evident fusion of the new and the old, beautifully composed in a design that draws references to both classic craftsmanship and new, modern design principles.
