STEPPING OUT

Parisian fashion house Céline has introduced a series of fashion-forward footwear as part of its autumn 2016 line. Team this eye-catching sandal, pictured above in bright orange, with a chic monochrome ensemble from the maison's ready-to-wear collections.

FLORAL FANCY

The charming floral embellishments on Delpozo's Benedetta handbag reference the passionate women in Spanish poet Federico García Lorca's book Gypsy Ballads. Available in three sizes.

KNOTTY BUT NICE

Hermès' collection of silk twill ties features a mix of tropical motifs inspired by fauna and flora. We like the idea of pairing this luscious tie with a light blazer and a striped dress shirt.

PEBBLE DASH

Inspired by his childhood fascination for collecting one-of-a-kind stones at the seashore, designer Charlie de Viel Castel has created a line of necklaces by embedding loose diamonds on pebbles found on beaches around the world. Meanwhile, Parsons School of Design graduate Diane Kordas has also debuted her line of fine jewellery – rose-gold spike pendants set with precious jewels and diamonds. Both brands are available at Net-A-Porter.com

BEACHFRONT BONDING

Saint-Tropez-based brand Vilebrequin has created these stylish dad-and-son swimming trunks for Father's Day on June 19. Each pair is decorated with a printed turtle-football motif and is available in two sizes: the Moorea for men and the Jim for boys.

FUTURE SHOCK

Nicolas Ghesquière's pre-autumn collection for Louis Vuitton carries forward the themes of his previous lines with even more sporty influences and modern twists (yes, we're referring to the patent-leather racing gloves and platform combat boots). A look we're sure we'll be seeing more of on the red carpet is this edgy colour-block ensemble. A gel-induction method was used to iron on the raindrop-shaped embellishments, and the studs on the sewn-on collar (which is usually worn as a belt) reference the interior of the house's travel trunks.

FAMILY THAIS

Thai mother-and-daughter duo Pat and Fonn have been co-designing the accessories for their brand S'uvimol since its inception in 2011. Each product is made with skins, including python and crocodile, from the family's own breeding farm in Thailand.
