Locally Loved

Charleston's entrepreneurs inspire with locally based businesses that feature items to adorn your home, sip morning and night, eat at all times of day and bring the rest of the globe into your life. Here are our recommendations for a tremendous 2014:

REWINED

Using repurposed wine bottles, Rewined crafts candles that mimic the aromas of wines. In just a few years, the company went from selling in local markets to 300 international locations. Find it locally at Scout & Molly's, Bull Street Gourmet & Market, and more. www.rewinedcandles.com

KING BEAN COFFEE

Charleston's culinary scene was just blooming when owner Kurt Weinberger began working with chefs to perfect King Bean blends. While it still prepares specialty coffees for restaurants, the roaster now offers beans to regular folks who want to sip something special. Find King Bean at Southern Season or Caviar & Bananas, or buy online. www.kingbean.com

CALLIE'S BISCUITS

The original recipe comes from the Callie, but it's daughter Carrie at the helm making these buttery biscuits in seven, mouth-watering versions. Find Callie's at Caviar & Bananas, Mixson Market or Ted's Butcherblock, or buy online. www.calliesbiscuits.com

PROUD MARY

Upon a return from South America, Harper Poe began bringing textiles and indigenous handcrafts to the states. Artisans in the developing world now bridge the gap between on-trend furnishings and accessories and "pride, not pity." Find Proud Mary at Celadon or Mac & Murphy, or online. www.proudmary.org

FIREFLY

The largest micro-distillery in the state, Firefly offers flavored vodkas and dessert-inspired liqueurs and recently added seven types of moonshine. Go to the Wadmalaw Island distillery or find distributors online. www.fireflyvodka.com, www.fireflymoonshine.com
