Scammell Pioneer Recovery Tractor - Moreton C Cullimore

Another new Scammell to enter the Oxford range is the Pioneer, produced between 1937 and 1945. It served throughout WWII as an artillery tractor, as well as being used as a 6 x 4 heavy breakdown vehicle. After the end of the war, the Pioneer proved most useful in civilian life in the roles of heavy haulage, forestry, fairground and recovery, lasting well into the 1980s. The Gloucestershire-based sand and gravel haulage company of Moreton C Cullimore bought this particular recovery tractor and have restored it completely in their corporate colour scheme, even down to the detail of giving it a name from Charles Dickens' novels, in line with all their fleet.

Scammell Highwayman Crane - Pickfords

The popular and collectable Pickfords colour scheme looks great on this finely detailed little model. Decorated in the company's familiar navy blue with white lettering, the livery is enlivened by the bright red wheels and the detailed British Road Services roundel on the cab doors. Note too, the red/silver Scammell lettering on the radiator grille. The vehicle carries a Fleet No. M2362, registration plate XXW 949.

MAN Pump Ladder - Devon and Somerset Fire and Rescue

Our model of the very modern fire appliance, registered WA09 KME as used by this West Country fire service, carries a wealth of detail, which will appeal to all collectors of contemporary emergency vehicles. Mounted on a black chassis with red, silver and yellow paintwork to the Right Hand Drive cab and rear, the door handles, windscreen surround, mirrors and mudguards are painted matt black. The cab roof is painted white and all the 'metalwork' is masked in silver. Other authentic details extend to the Night Owl Mast Lamp on the passenger side roof and a blue tinted light bar. Even the up to date Crimestoppers slogans are minutely printed across the back doors.

Scania Aerial Rescue Pump (ARP) - Northamptonshire Fire and Rescue

Another addition to the Oxford Emergency fleet is also a very modern fire appliance, which comes decorated in the traditional Fire and Rescue colour scheme, as used by the Northamptonshire Fire and Rescue Service. Registered KX09 JHK, the model features an unprecedented level of printed detail including the fire service crest, manufacturers' details and a notice advising its Rear Steer facility. The little replica also features a Mast Lamp, this time a Night Scan type housed on the red cab roof on the driver's side.

AEC Regent III/Merryweather Fire Engine - Hong Kong Fire Brigade

A reminder of our Colonial past is this classic fire appliance as used in the former British protectorate. Decorated in traditional red with silver on all vertical surfaces, the model is finished off with matt brown masking. The colourful Hong Kong FS crest adorns the cab doors and the lettering along the sides is printed in gold, while the number plate simply reads HKFS. With its nostalgic overseas connotations, this little model provides an unusual addition to any emergency vehicle collection.

Dennis RS Fire Engine - London Fire Brigade (London's Burning)

Further new tooling from Oxford introduces the Dennis RS Fire Engine, which was purchased and used extensively by fire authorities when it first appeared in the late 1970s. Even though manufacture ceased in the early 1990s, the Dennis RS is still in use today by a wide number of fire authorities. Differing from previous fire vehicles, which were used in a variety of roles, the RS version was a purpose built fire appliance.

One of its special attributes was a reinforced all-welded steel cab to protect the crew.

Avid enthusiasts will appreciate that the London Fire Brigade did not in fact use the Dennis RS Fire Engine but it gained its fame as the 'star' of the long-running TV series 'London's Burning' with registration number VDT 420Y. It was at the time an ex-South Yorkshire fire engine and is now in preservation.

Austin ATV - Essex County Fire Brigade

Registered GLE 52, the Essex County Fire Brigade may well have used this vehicle during WWII as the Austin ATV was built with this in mind.

The Austin ATV (Auxiliary Towing Vehicle) was introduced in 1941 and continued in manufacture until 1943. Built on the Austin K2 2-ton short wheelbase chassis, these vehicles were made with reinforced steel to protect the occupants, particularly when working in areas subject to bombing and associated enemy action. The seating accommodated the driver and one passenger in the front, with the crew sitting on cushioned equipment lockers along the back.

Our latest model is painted in the traditional bright red with black chassis. The bodywork is complemented by silver coach lines and gold lettering, as well as bearing the Brigade crest on the cab doors. Additional details include brown ladders on the roof and two spotlights and bell above the windscreen. Note too the 'canvas' curtained back providing token protection for the fire crew seated inside.

Dennis F8 - London Fire Brigade

The Dennis F8 belongs to the 1950s era at a time when the famous coachbuilder's vehicles dominated the fire emergency scene. Today, it remains one of only a handful of manufacturers specialising in fire-fighting machinery.

Our model, registered 42 CMX, would have made a striking sight speeding through London, with its silver bodywork and red front, which also incorporates the Dennis name in silver/black on the radiator grille. The London Fire Brigade four-colour crest features on the side along with the Brigade lettering in gold. A useful addition is a spare set of extension ladders perched on the roof, capable of a 35 ft stretch, essential to reach the tall buildings in our capital city.

AEC Matador Wrecker - East Kent

The AEC Matador Wrecker, an ex WWII heavy haulage unit, was the perfect vehicle in civilian life when used as a breakdown vehicle. Oxford have already brought you the version used by Southdown and you can now add this latest release, modelled on the wrecker as used by the East Kent public transport service.

Finished in the East Kent corporate colour scheme of dark red and cream, the East Kent logo features above the cab window and along the sides, while the number plate is a red and white trade plate 116 FN fitted to the front and rear. Further masking operations include the front headlights in silver and the rear lights in red and orange.

If you are a collector of PSV vehicles from the south of England, this East Kent buses wrecker would make an appropriate addition.

Ford Transit Mk1 Beavertail Recovery - AA

Only the second release of the recently tooled Ford Transit Mk1 cab with its characteristic Beavertail rear body, our model comes in the familiar and highly visible yellow and black livery of the Automobile Association. An additional feature comprises the pyramid style roof box with orange beacon on the cab roof.

The platform is masked in silver and the radiator masking operation deserves special mention, finished in yellow with black ventilation grilles. Registered TLF 248M, this vehicle dates from 1973. Why not add one of your own 'rescued' Oxford Diecast cars of the period to the platform, to complete the image.

Volvo FH Curtainside Lorry - David Bletsoe-Brown

The David Bletsoe-Brown group is a family owned business which was founded by the current Managing Director and Chairman, David Bletsoe-Brown, in 1976 with just one vehicle. Today, it operates with a fleet of forty lorries from its 2-acre site half a mile from Junction 7 of the A14 near Kettering. Its speciality is palletised distribution and the colourful two tone dark blue and light blue fleet can be seen throughout the UK, with one of its major clients being the Tesco supermarket chain.

Our 1:76 scale Oxford replica, registered S41 JDP, represents a curtainside lorry from the fleet decorated in their signature two-tone colour scheme with a silver roof

Humber Pullman Limousine - Black Pearl/Shell Grey

A replica of a car made in 1952, our model is based on the original in the Humber Car Museum owned by Allan Marshall, from Hull. Allan has a number of Humber's in the museum and you can learn all about his fascinating collection by visiting his website at www.humbercarmuseum.co.uk.

The history of the Humber Pullman started in 1930, when the four-door limousine with Thrupp & Maberley coachwork was introduced by the British Humber Company as a successor to the Humber 20/65 hp. Between 1948 and 1954, the Humber Pullman was offered with a central partition for chauffeured use and the Oxford version carries this special feature. The second Oxford release on the Humber Pullman Limousine has Black Pearl/Shell Grey bodywork with superb whitewall tyres lined in red with silver hubcaps.

Morris Marina - Harvest Gold

In real life, the Morris Marina was dubbed one of the worst cars ever produced but despite that, it was really popular during its lifetime.

Our newly tooled Marina comes in Harvest Gold, which was one of the most popular colour schemes of the 1970s. The front sidelights and rear lights are picked out colour and a high number of masking operations replicate the silver (chrome) finish of the real thing.

Note particularly the silver trim detail on the wheel rims and the front grille.

BSA Motorcycle and Sidecar - RAC

The motorcycle and sidecar was a popular form of transport from the 1930s right through to the 1950s. The RAC was the main rival to the Automobile Association and like the AA, already the subject of an Oxford model, the RAC used the motorbike and sidecar for the purposes of roadside assistance for motorists. It is very appropriate, therefore, that the second release off the new Oxford tool is that of the RAC.

AR88 Out of their element

This fascinating publication is devoted to cars and other vehicles that float, fly or run on rails. Here are the stories of amphibious vehicles, roadable aircraft and road-railers, along with a few other curiosities. Hundreds of unusual vehicles are described and pictured, many of them apparently offering solutions to problems which no-one thought actually existed. The fevered brainchildren of many eccentric inventors and visionary engineers are described here.
