UK & EIRE 2 Guineas (£2.10) USA $5.00

This month we add the Scania truck to our range, at 1:76 scale it is 9 inches in length and is the start of a brand new programme which includes many new cabs and trailer variants. This year we have 5 chassis variations for the tractor alone.

Fagan & Whalley was founded in 1927 in the village of Hapton, situated in the middle of the Lancashire cotton belt. The business has always maintained strong links with the textile industry and it endured the recession of the 1930's, through the war years to the 1950's, to a period when Lancashire cotton was "King". The present proprietors are proud of the fact that the business still remains a family concern since its humble beginnings with a horse and cart. The fleet of vehicles has grown over the years and goes from vans to 44 tonners, the majority of which are Scania powered, handling a variety of goods from car parts to plastics. This model will be shipped at the end of April under separate cover.

LAND ROVER UPDATED VARIANT

The demand for the first release of the Land Rover, the 80 inch version was unprecedented. We sold out far more quickly than we had expected. We have produced a second uncertificated variant, with several changes and the model is coded LAN180001E. The differences are as follows. There is a thin silver line along the bottom and sides of the rear tailgate. On the chassis the axle parts are painted black. The two hinges at the back edge of the bonnet, below windscreen are in silver as are the upright pegs each side of spare wheel. The rib along the panel below windscreen is painted in satin black.

A railway vehicle used to transport track maintenance employees to the work site, which included a combined workshop. This is modelled on a real picture we viewed of the actual vehicle. Add to this the Minor Van and you have an interesting set. This is the first variant of the TK in this form, we have a second variant with a stepped roof that will issue over the next few months which was used by the Signalling & Telegraph Engineers.

Originally intended for later this year we received such enthusiasm that we bought it forward a quarter.

I'm sure many of you don't need to read this as you will be very familiar with the story, but I do get asked sometimes by overseas members for explanations. BMC was the largest British car company of its day, with (in 1952) 39 percent of British output, producing a wide range of cars under brand names including Austin, Morris, MG, Austin-Healey, Wolseley as well as commercial vehicles and agricultural tractors.

The first chairman was Lord Nuffield (William Morris) but he was replaced in August 1952 by Austin's Leonard Lord

In 1888 the Eastman Dry Plate and Film Co. of Rochester, New York, introduced the Kodak. The word Kodak was made up by George Eastman as a trade mark, it soon became synonymous with this type of camera. Later the company changed its name to Eastman Kodak due to the success of the new camera.

Although the Kodak was not the first roll-film camera its immense popularity was due to the full developing and printing service that went with it. The Kodak was 6 ½ inches long and came ready loaded with film and was tied and sealed to show that it was fresh from the factory. When one hundred pictures had been taken the camera was returned to Kodak who processed the pictures. You pulled the cord to set the shutter and pressed the button to release it. A viewfinder was not regarded as necessary. It used paper rolls to start with, but by 1889 Eastman introduced celluloid roll-film. The Kodak made photography accessible to the general public for the first time.

A real bonanza for British Rail enthusiasts as we also release this month the Bedford CA in the famous yellow livery. The CA was a workhorse and provided that extra bit of room for local deliveries.

I think I am getting a little confused with the releases, the CA008 doesn't appear to have been released in the Globe, I thought it had, but on checking I can't find it. It arrived early which caused me the confusion, hence we also have this month's CA015 release - my apologies. The livery is deliberately plain as part of a move towards even more authentic vehicles. I think the

1:76 PRE-PRODUCTION

Some early shots of our latest 1:76 castings. One or two different vehicles here covering an earlier period than our existing offerings. Can you identify them all?. Also being tooled at this scale are the Jaguar MK VII, Jaguar Series 2, MGTC and an MGA. We release more information next month about future ranges, including a brand new range, which I'm sure many of you will find of great interest. We have had to put in place a lot of advanced licences and personally I think the vehicles are going to be very well received. We will be tackling new area. we won't always do the obvious.

As luck would have it, Rod Ward has just released another book in the superb Auto Review series. This time all about the taxi, for those of you who haven't read any of this series, you are really missing out. Thirty pages packed with photos and information, the FX4 is 50 years old this year, but the story of cabs in Britain goes much further back, who knows maybe we'll release an early cab version. CODE AR36 - £5.95 per copy.

FREE FOR ALL MEMBERS RENEWING

76BUL006G - 55m long

If you renewed your membership this year, or if you renew your membership before the year end, you'll get one of these Bullnoses absolutely FREE. It looks like our old version, but don't be deceived by the picture, it's actually a smaller version - just over 2 inches long (55mm). The same model will appear in our 10th Anniversary set which will release late May (a little later than anticipated). That set features 10 liveries which are drawn from our range, going back over our history. Dusty has suggested that we could reproduce all of the liveries that have appeared on the larger version - the thought of that is not appealing, as I think when we last counted there were in excess of 500 that had been produced. If some of you do have some old favourite liveries, then please let me know, as we will add them to a wish list that we are creating. We produced between 3 to 4 million Bullnoses, I have counted before, but I have forgotten the exact number. Some of the largest runs were on the series of Co-op models in the mid nineties which alone were over 250,000 pieces. If you have only just joined the club and want the model then it can be purchased for £2.95. TAFF
