Issue 105

UK & EIRE 2 Guineas (£2.10) USA $5.00

The Morris Eight was a small car inspired by the sales popularity of the Ford Model Y. The success of the car enabled Morris to regain its position as Britain's largest motor manufacturer. The Series I ran from 1935-1937, the Series II was slightly restyled and in late 1938 the Series E appeared on which our model is based. This continued in production during the war for the military, essential civilian use and export. Post war general production restarted in 1945 but there were no more tourers made in the UK. In Australia, however, a flourishing body building industry continued to provide tourer versions on imported chassis/mechanicals. The engine went on to be used, with very minor changes, in the Series MM from 1948-1953, they were also adapted as auxiliary power units in Centurion, Conqueror and Chieftain tanks. Morris also used this engine as the basis of special Marine and Stationary power plants. There was a van version of the Series E rated at 5 cwt capacity called the Z Series. It was first produced in 1940 and outlived the saloon, ceasing production in about 1953 when the engine was phased out. Over 120,000 of the Series E version were produced.

The company was founded by Dermot Mulgrew Senior in 1973. Originally based in the Belfast docks area steady success meant it outgrew the facilities there. In 1995 the company moved to its current central location at a specially converted old mill just off the A1 dual carriageway on the Lurgan road in Dromore, County Down, where it now has 120,000 sq ft (11,000m<sup>2</sup>) at its disposal, 90,000 sq ft (8,100m<sup>2</sup>) of that, secure warehousing space.

The history of Agfa goes back to the nineteenth century and has a long and illustrious record of innovation and technological leadership. A German colour dye manufacturer was established in 1867 at the Rummelsburger See near Berlin. In 1890 a Belgian 'photo products' business was opened by 22-year-old Lieven Gevaert in Antwerp, this was mainly used for manufacturing calcium paper for photography. The two joined forces in 1964 and together they grew into an internationally renowned company in the graphic and healthcare industries. In the UK they were well known for their films and cameras, being a market leader in the 1960's/70's.

The Morris Oxford was updated in 1956 with a new optional two-tone paint scheme, fluted bonnet and small rear fins. Inside the bench seats trimmed in leather remained, but the instrument cluster was revised and a new dished steering wheel fitted. The engine produced 55 horse power following an increase in compression ratio though the top speed and acceleration remained the same.

The Standard Vanguard was a car produced by the Standard Motor Company in Coventry from 1947 to 1963. The car was announced in July 1947 and was completely new with no resemblance to the previous models and was Standard's first post World War II car. It was also the first model to carry the new Standard badge which was a heavily-stylised representation of the wings of a Griffin.

Adhering to William Lyons maxim of "grace, pace and space", the Mark 2 was a beautiful, fast and capable saloon car. It came with either a 2.4 L, 3.4 L or 3.8 L Jaguar XK6 engine. In 1967, the Mark 2 became the 240 and 340, whilst the 3.8 litre engine was dropped; the later cars are identified by slim front and rear bumpers.

Produced by MG division of the British Motor Corporation from 1955 to 1962. The MGA replaced the T series cars and represented a complete styling break from the older vehicles. The car was officially launched at the Frankfurt Motor Show of 1955. It was replaced by the MGB when production ceased in July 1962. 101,081 units were sold the vast majority of which were exported with only 5869 cars sold on the home market.

MG TC NEW

CODE 76MGTC001	SCALE 1:76	EDITION -----	PRICE £2.95
--------------------------	----------------------	------------------	-----------------------	--

The TC was the first postwar MG, launched in 1945. It was quite similar to the pre-war TB, sharing the same engine. It was exported to the United States, even though only ever built in right hand drive. The export version had slightly smaller head lights and larger twin rear lights. Over 10,000 were produced, a large number by MG standards. It cost £527 on the home market in 1947.

The Jaguar Mark VII was a large four door sports sedan launched by Jaguar Cars at the 1950 London Motor Show. The chassis came from the Jaguar Mark V with which the Mark VII shared its wheelbase. For this latest offering Jaguar designed a modern and streamlined looking body, featuring fully integrated headlights and mudguards along with an increased rear overhang which gave the car enhanced presence. As on the Mark V, the upper part of the rear wheels was covered by the body work. In place of its predecessor's flat windscreen, the Mark VII design included a two piece front screen, later versions had a gently curved one piece screen.

The 3442 cc straight six engine provided the same 160 bhp (119.3 kW) power output. Despite its size, a top speed in excess of 100 mph (160 km/h) was claimed. The Jaguar Mark VII's arrival coincided with some relaxation of the desperate economic situation after the war. By the time of the models' 1954 upgrade, 20,908 had been produced. This is the 1:76 version of the model, the design on our 1:43rd versions that will appear later this year is more detailed. Designing at 1:76 and 1:43rd scale are two totally different propositions, the construction is not the same. TAFF

This is the latest addition to this series the RM107 York CitySightseeing. York is an historic walled city at the confluence of the rivers Ouse and Foss. The city is noted for its rich history, playing an important role throughout much of its existence; it is nearly 2,000 years old.

The city was founded as Eboracum in AD 71 by the Romans and was made one of the two capitals of all Roman Britain. During this period influential historical figures, such as Constantine the Great, became associated with the city. The entire Roman Empire was governed from York for two years by Septimus Severus. Back in stock we have the Bath version as production of the second half of the addition is now with us. The models come in an acetate pack and you can check out the web site for the other 8 in the series.

NEW TOOLING ANNOUNCEMENT

I am sure many of you will have enjoyed seeing the releases each month during the first half of this year, we are a couple of months behind with our programme. This is in part due to the demand that we have experienced, which has meant that we have rerun certain items to fulfil our order obligations. We have taken on a demanding schedule. We are now in the second phase of the programme which promises one of the largest launches of British diecast. Already announced are the 1:76 Land Rovers, Paralanian, Bedford CA vans and Milkfloats, Morris J2's, Scammell Scarabs and Mechanical Horses - these will all release over the next 10/12 weeks. The 1:76 cars have just started such as the Jowetts and Mayflowers, these have been joined this month by Jags and MGA's and the commercial vehicles - last month we had the Fordson tractors and W & E milkfloats. The range will be added to with the additions of the Daimler DS420 Hearse, Ford Cortina MK III, Austin Lowloader Taxi and tooling mods to the Wales and Edwards Milkfloats in the last quarter. The DAF's are in production, the heavy haulage trailer comes in the next two months and we will add a MAN TGX tractor unit to extend the range. The new Falcon range will be extended with the addition of the MGZA Magnette and MGZB and at the end of this year we will add the Jensen Interceptor MK I/II and III.

We also announce our release of British N Scale products; see details below. These are smaller scale than our 1:76 models - 1:148 to be precise. Many railway modellers will be pleased to see this new scale covered; we also think that some of the models will become popular with collectors of buses etc. The 1:76 bus market has been well covered and prices are far too expensive. So we hope to bring a new dimension to this sector by supplying affordable models at this new scale.

BRITISH N GAUGE

We call it "British N Scale"; since it is different from "N" Scale in Europe and the States. British "N" Scale runs on 9mm track as do all "N" Scale Railway models. That is at a scale of 1:160. However, the British models themselves are manufactured at a scale of 1:148. That means the Routemaster shown fits nicely into the case of our 1:76 models at 2.25 inches in length

Early pre-production shots

CATALOGUE PAGES

This month we release the catalogue pages covering RT007-RT018, VW025-30 and GR019-24. These are single pages to fit the old format. Further details about these models can be found at www.oxforddiecast.co.uk
