EAL pupils learn English more easily if they are:

- motivated
- interested in how languages work
- feel that their languages and cultures are valued
- have a strong foundation in their home languages
- continue their home language studies go to a school where:

- EAL pupils' home languages are valued
- parents' support is sought and valued
- EAL support staff know that they must integrate language and content
- classroom and subject teachers know how to make content accessible to them
- they hear and read enough English at a comprehensible level
- their home languages are used to support school work have parents who:

- support the learning of English
- feel at ease in an English-speaking school
- help them to maintain their home language
- give them rich home language experiences
